

Study Puts City Worker's Family Budget in $9,000 Salary Range

By JOSEPH A. LOFTUS
(c) New York Times News Service
WASHINGTON—A new government study of living standards and costs reportedly puts a city worker's family budget in a range running close to $9,000.
The Labor Department's bureau of labor statistics, however, would not confirm that or any other figure, though it did acknowledge the study had been made and probably would be published next month.
Printing delays are the ostensible reason for repeated postponement of publication, but informed persons believe the administration primarily wants to avoid compounding wage negotiations problems, particularly those in the sensitive automotive conflict which has already produced a strike of Ford Motor Company employees.

The budget that the B.L.S. will unveil deals with one of four "moderate living standards" it has been studying. It has nothing to do with the "minimum health and decency" budget it used to publish.
The 1959 "moderate city budget" that B.L.S. published ranged from $8600 (for Chicago and Seattle).
The new figure will reflect more than price rises, which alone account for 14.5 per cent. It will reflect the changing concept of "standard of living."
There are many living standards, depending on one's income grouping. These standards have been changing since the United States became an industrialized country. At one time, the average factory worker rented his home. The changing concept of family stability now impels him to buy a home. Automobiles once were nonessentials. Today, many factory workers cannot travel between home and job, or between home and supermarket without private transportation.

The prototype family consists of a working father, 38 years old, a nonworking mother, a 13-year-old son and an 8-year-old daughter.
The couple is in the middle stage of the life cycle—a well-defined stage in which they have acquired their basic durable goods and maintain a level of social life, health, and well-being that is widely accepted.
The study examines every item that goes into their budget.

The B.L.S. will also publish budgets reflecting a more comfortable level of living than the "moderate living standard"; a lower standard that may be called "minimum of adequacy," and the budget of a retired couple.
A moderate standard budget approaching $9,000 may have significant implications for the so-called poverty level budget of $3,200 for a city family of four. That figure was worked out by the Social Security Administration and has been accepted by the government generally as a line defining the upper levels of poverty.
A labor economist, for instance, said that if the amenities are cut out of a $7,000 budget, it drops to about $5,000 and makes the $3,200 poverty definition look unrealistically low.

WEATHER
Mostly cloudy and cool today, with a chance of light showers. High in the upper 40s. Tomorrow sunny and a little warmer. The forecast for the next five days, Thursday through Monday, has temperatures averaging a little below normal, with gradual warming through Saturday, cooler Sunday, and little change thereafter. Daytime highs will be in the lower 60s and overnight lows in the middle 40s. Weekend showers are expected to average one tenth to two tenths of an inch. Sunrise today will be at 7:28 a.m., sunset at 6:46 p.m. Yesterday's weather: precipitation .57 inches, river level 3.2 feet and falling, high 58, low 49.

WARREN COUNTY
Bear Lake area residents are being asked what kind of community center they want. Leaders in the area are circulating questionnaires to see if the public wants a proposed center to include a combined gym and skating rink, a kitchen, or a meeting room.

Shoplifting and thefts by store employees will be discussed tomorrow evening at the Blue Manor Restaurant. All retailers in Warren and the surrounding area are invited to make reservations for the meeting, at which leading law enforcement officials will speak.

PENNSYLVANIA
A nickel per pack increase in the state cigarette tax was passed by the Senate last night and sent to Gov. Shafer to be signed. The increase would hike the tax from eight cents a pack to 13 cents a pack.

Leaders of the striking steel haulers said they approved a program for settling the strike. The program was arrived at yesterday by an unusual seven-state mediation team. If approved by the Teamsters, the trucking companies, and the striking drivers, the program could start steel moving within four days.

THE NATION
It looked last night as though a break was coming in deadlocked bargaining by the United Auto Workers and Ford Motor Co. They declared a 24-hour blackout on news of the contract talks, a move that usually heralds a break in bargaining.

Sen. George A. Smathers proposed that the government's planned spending this year be cut by 3 per cent in every agency, with the money available to the President only in case of "urgent national interest." The proposal is an attempt to break the current impasse between congressional demands for spending cuts and the administration's desire for a tax rise.

Ignoring those demands, the Senate passed a $4.77-billion public works money bill, which includes "pork barrel" legislation for river, harbor and flood control projects. And it appeared likely that the House will approve today a pay increase for federal employees, coupled with an increase in postal rates.

THE WORLD
The Soviet government announced a 1968 budget that includes increased expenditures for both armaments and consumer goods.
The bombing did continue, as United States Navy pilots bombed a massive military area in the suburbs of Haiphong in a pre-dawn raid that left fires said to be visible for 20 miles. The area, said to contain military barracks and assembly and storage facilities for helicopters and missiles, was hit for the first time on Monday. This area and a nearby airfield have apparently been removed from the Pentagon's restricted list.

Because of the Vietnam war, the United States will temporarily be one division short of the five it is pledged to have available for European service in the event of a major war.

Poll Picks Rocky-Reagan Combination

By REILMAN MORIN
AP Special Correspondent
NEW YORK (AP) — A majority of Republican leader participating in an Associated Press poll favor Richard M. Nixon for the presidential nomination in 1968, but they named as the "strongest ticket" the combination of Govs. Nelson A. Rockefeller of New York and Ronald Reagan of California. Reagan ran far ahead of all other potential vice presidential nominees cited in the survey.
In stating the reasons for favoring the Rockefeller-Reagan team, these were two typical comments from GOP chiefs who asked not to be identified:
"The South has 330 convention votes and I think is geared to go for a compromise that this ticket would offer."
"This would offer the voters what they want; it would hold the party together."
The poll was nationwide. Associated Press correspondents submitted a three-part questionnaire to Republican state chairmen and members of the GOP National Committee in all 50 states. About half answered the questions. The results were:
1. Whom do you favor for the 1968 Republican presidential nomination?
Nixon—46 per cent
Gov. George Romney of Michigan—26
Rockefeller—14
Reagan—7
Others—7
2. Which Republican has the best chance of defeating President Johnson?
Nixon—41 per cent

U.S. Navy Bombers Set Fire To Military Compound in North

By WILLIAM BEECHER
(C) N.Y. Times News Service
WASHINGTON — The war in Vietnam is forcing a temporary reduction of the United States' military commitment to the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.
For years the United States has pledged to rush five divisions of troops to Europe within the first 60 days of a major war. Now it must disclose that it will be one division short of that pledge during much of 1968.
President Johnson's decision to increase American combat strength in South Vietnam to 525,000 men by early next year, officials in the Pentagon and State Department say, means that one of the five divisions remaining in the country, though earmarked for Europe, must be sent instead to Asia.
It was either that or a call-up of the reserves, which the President did not want to do. He has ordered the creation of a new division to fill the gap, but it will not be battle-ready until late 1968 at the earliest.

McNamara Plans to Keep On Bombing North Viet

By EDWIN B. HAKKINSON
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara's insistence that bombing or mining Haiphong, main supply port of North Vietnam, will not shorten the war or cut off enemy supplies was underlined in testimony made public yesterday.
He made it clear he plans to continue restricted bombing of North Vietnam.
McNamara testified Aug. 25 before the Senate preparedness subcommittee and publication of his testimony follows that of several uniformed military chiefs urging the mining or bombing of Haiphong.
The subcommittee earlier made public excerpts of McNamara's testimony playing down the importance of Haiphong, saying supplies could be brought in over the beach if it were knocked out. Both he and President Johnson insist that the differences between the military and civilian chiefs on the question are slight.
In the testimony made public Tuesday, McNamara, in heated exchanges with members of the subcommittee, made a string of denials to senators' questions and suggestions:
—That heavier or earlier bombing attacks on the North would have reduced U.S. casualties in the sporadic but bitter ground war in the South.
—That there has been any change in the basic bombing pattern, even though numerous targets have been authorized for first strikes recently.
—That he is following a "no-win policy" or that U.S. forces might as well "throw up our hands" and get out.
McNamara agreed with Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., that if supplies from Soviet Russia and Communist China could

LBJ's Budget Battle Goes On

By MARJORIE HUNTER
(C) N.Y. Times News Service
WASHINGTON — Ignoring the general congressional clamor for budget cuts, the Senate yesterday passed a $4.77-billion public works money bill after refusing to trim it sharply.
The House, meanwhile, grappled with another economy problem: whether to grant some 2 million federal employees their 15th pay increase in 22 years.
The outlook is for House approval, sometime late today, of the pay increase, coupled with an increase in postal rates.
Senate approval of the big public works money bill — including funds for the so-called "pork barrel" projects involving rivers, harbors and flood control — came on a vote of 82-3.
Earlier, the Senate had rejected, 54 to 27, a move to trim $248 million from the bill. Voting against were 42 Democrats and 12 Republicans.
As passed by the Senate, the bill tops the House-passed version by $153 million. Differences will be worked out in Senate-House conference.

In addition to river, harbor and flood control projects, the bill contains funds for the Atomic Energy Commission, water pollution control and other programs.
In the House, few voices were raised in opposition to the bill that would couple pay raises with increases in postal rates.
President Johnson had sought separate bills. The House post office committee joined the two proposals, and provided pay increases costing $73 million more than those proposed by the President.
Rate increases would raise first class mail from 5 to 6 cents; post cards, from 4 to 5 cents; airmail, from 8 to 10 cents; and also would substantially increase rates on second and third class mail. The estimated yield would be $885 million a year.
The bill also would increase pay of postal workers by six per cent and other federal employees by 4.5 per cent, retroactive to Oct. 1. This would cost about $850 million this fiscal year.
In addition, the bill would grant two other pay raises next July and on April 1, 1969. When fully implemented, the cost would be $2.6 billion a year.
The House last night tentatively rejected, by voice vote, proposals that would have killed rate increases on first-class mail, postcards and airmail. Strong efforts will be made today to lop off the second and third pay increases. Dozens of other amendments will be proposed, too. However, the House is expected to keep intact the postal increases and to provide pay raises at least for the current fiscal year.

Before plunging into the pay-postal debate, the House demanded that the Senate back down on three additions it had made to the $4.95-billion agriculture money bill.
Senate increases, on paper, at least, totaled $1.57-billion above house figures. However, $1.5-billion of that amount involved a bookkeeping transfer to the commodity credit corporation and thus would have no effect on cutting actual government spending.
If the Senate refuses to accept house demands, the agriculture money bill would go back to conference.
Meanwhile, the Johnson administration was accused yesterday of freeing funds for politically popular programs in an attempt "to badger congress" into granting a tax increase.
"It looks to me as if the President were trying to use these popular programs in order to put the screws on Congress," said Rep. Charles Gubser, R-Calif.
Under heavy pressure from Congress to cut spending, the administration in recent days froze previously appropriated funds for lower-priority military construction, civil projects involving rivers and harbors and flood control, popularly known as "the pork barrel", and most construction starts in all government agencies.
Just Monday, administration officials hinted broadly that the President might also freeze up to $2.2 billion in highway construction funds.
Gubser leveled his charge on administration tactics during sharp questioning of Secretary of Defense Robert McNamara by an angry House Armed Services Committee.

SOX VS. CARDS TODAY ... WEATHER PERMITTING

The Boston Red Sox and the St. Louis Cardinals will face off today at Fenway Park in the sixth game of the World Series... weather permitting.
The U.S. Weather Bureau forecast for today put the odds at 50-50 on the probability of rain. Occasional rain in the morning was looked for and then a chance of showers during the game.
If the rain holds off, the teams will play in a comparatively comfortable temperature in the high 60s with gentle variable winds.
The Red Sox, faced with "no tomorrow" if they lose are putting their faith in 26-year-old Gary Wastlewski, the right-hander who worked three perfect innings as a relief pitcher against the Cardinals in the third game.
Right-hander Dick Hughes is listed to go for the Cards who are leading 3-2 in games and need only one victory to be world champions. Hughes has a 16-2 season record and was beaten in the second game by Jim Lonborg's 5-0, one-hitter.

'Shoplifting' Subject Of Local Merchants Meet

Shoplifting in Warren and nearby areas will be discussed tomorrow evening at the Blue Manor Restaurant.
District Attorney Samuel Bonavita, Borough Police Chief Michael Evan, Sheriff Don Allen, Peace Justice Martha Lawson, and Sgt. John Kruepy of the state police will be among the speakers.
All retailers from Warren and surrounding towns are invited to attend the meeting, according to Abe Schwartz, chairman of the retail division of Warren Area Chamber of Commerce, which is co-sponsoring the meeting along with the Pennsylvania Retailers' Association. Schwartz said all who plan to attend will need reservations, which may be made by calling the chamber office, 723-3050.

Some studies of shoplifting show that most of it is done by young people. But many who have studied the problem say it's hard to tell who is shoplifting more—young people or adults—since young amateurs are more likely to be caught than the older "pros."
In a recent survey of teenagers in the Chester, Pa., area, 50 per cent of 1,481 interviewed admitted having shoplifted. Most said they had taken something within the previous year. The survey covered students in grades seven through 12. Of the boys, 64 per cent admitted to shoplifting; of the girls, 37 per cent.
Stealing by store employees will also be covered at tomorrow's meeting. Fewer statistics are available on this problem than on shoplifting.
Businessmen speaking at the meeting will be Jacob Levinson of Levinson Brothers Department Store; John F. Glover, assistant controller of the Erie Dry Goods Co.; and J. Thomas Weyant, assistant executive director of the state retailers' association.
The seminar will open with dinner at 5:30 p.m. and continue until 9:30 p.m. Those preferring to dine at home may attend the seminar following dinner.
Two films on thefts by customers and on thefts by employees—will be shown.

CRASH SCENE
Faye L. Dunham, 16, of 1024 Follett Run rd., lost control of this car at 5:30 p.m. yesterday on Yanketush rd., a half mile north of Route 6, state police reported. She was taken to Warren General Hospital, where she was admitted with possible head injuries. Damage to the car was estimated at $500.

OBITUARIES

Herbert R. Williams

Herbert R. Williams, 67, of 308 Main st., Sugar Grove, died at his home at about 3:30 p.m. Tuesday, Oct. 10, 1967. Born in Corydon Sept. 3, 1900, the son of William and Edith Schooby Williams, he lived there until moving to Sugar Grove about 10 years ago.

A veteran of World War I, he was wounded while serving in France during that war. He was a member of the American Legion at Sugar Grove.

Surviving are his wife, Alice Holmes Williams, whom he married at Frewsburg, N.Y., April 19, 1924; a son, Benny Williams of Laurel, Md.; a daughter, Rebecca Trumble of Sugar Grove; and seven grandchildren. He was preceded in death by three brothers, Perry, Guy and Glenn, all of Corydon.

Friends may call at Schoonover Funeral Home, Sugar Grove, from 7 p.m. to 9 p.m. today and from 2 p.m. to 4 p.m. and from 7 p.m. to 9 p.m. tomorrow.

ventional weapons for only a few days. Beyond that point, nuclear weapons would be employed, they argue, and that could not go on for very long without one side or the other calling for a cease-fire and negotiations.

One American official commented: "Since none of our allies believes a war would last anything like 60 days, we don't think word of our temporary shortage of troops will cause any trauma over there."

U.S. planners say that the allies are much more concerned about any decrease in the size or effectiveness of the five American divisions and supporting forces already on the ground in Europe, than about the status of forces planned for reinforcement.

The reasons, they say, are as much psychological as military. So long as the U.S. maintains large, well-equipped ground forces in Europe, this should deter a calculated attack, since the Russians would realize that American tactical and strategic nuclear weapons might be brought to bear if this sizable American force was in danger of being wiped out.

Most NATO political leaders, and some military leaders as well, feel that in the present situation a planned war in Europe is unthinkable. Possible Soviet gains would be heavily over-balanced by losses if the war became a nuclear one, they reason.

They realize, however, that if the allied forces were thinned out too much, this might tempt the Soviet Union into a gamble, say in the Berlin area, that could lead to war.

There is also some feeling that a substantial American military presence tends to neutralize any potential threat inherent in a large west German military force.

Thus the allies are concerned about U.S. plans to withdraw two brigades of troops and four squadrons of jet fighters, bombers under a rotational plan that would keep such forces earmarked for Europe exclusively. Some allied sources have expressed fears that such force realignments might have a snowballing effect throughout Europe.

Rockefeller-Reagan—40 per cent
Nixon-Reagan—25
Nixon-Sen. Charles Percy of Illinois—11
Romney-Reagan—11
Others—13

Much of Nixon's strength, the survey indicated, is centered in the South. He also ran well in the Midwest and Far Western states.

The advantages of a Rockefeller-Reagan ticket, some replies said, would be in geographical balance, teaming the heads of the two biggest states, and combining Republicans whose philosophies are generally considered moderate and conservative, respectively.

A recent public opinion poll also showed this combination topping all other potential GOP tickets.

Commenting on that survey, Rockefeller reiterated that, "I am not a candidate and I'm not going to be. There is no chance of my being a candidate at any time."

Reagan said through a spokesman Tuesday that he was not interested in the vice presidential nomination.

on military construction, McNamara said that the order had been prompted by uncertainty over how much money Congress would appropriate. The freeze could be lifted in 30 days, he said, if Congress does not impose spending restrictions on the Pentagon.

Asked by Gubser if this was not an attempt "to badger Congress" into a tax increase, McNamara replied coolly: "My responsibility is not to pass a tax bill."

'CHE' GUEVARA

Bolivian Army Identifies Body of 'Che' Guevara

By JORGE CANELAS

Associated Press Writer

VALLEGRANDE, Bolivia (AP) — Bolivian army officers displayed a body to newsmen yesterday and claimed it was fully identified as that of Ernesto Che Guevara, reputed architect of Latin-American revolution.

The officers said Guevara, former top aide of Fidel Castro whose whereabouts have been a mystery since he vanished from Cuba in 1965, was mortally wounded in a clash between guerrillas and army units Sunday and that he confirmed his identity before he died.

"I'm the Che and I've failed," Gen. Alfredo Ovando Candia, commander in chief of the armed forces, quoted the slain guerrilla as saying before he died.

It remained to be seen, however, whether the Bolivian claim that Guevara was among those slain will be accepted elsewhere.

Press reports from the scene said Guevara was shot near the heart and in the legs with machine-gun fire.

The battle broke out about four miles north of Higuera Sunday afternoon. It raged for five hours in the jungles.

Guevara led the guerrilla forces in the Sierra Maestra mountains of eastern Cuba in Guevara's whereabouts had been a question since he disappeared from Cuba in April of 1965, to lead revolutions elsewhere by Castro's account.

Bolivian army reports insist he slipped into Bolivia in late February or early March this year and went under the names of Ramon or Fernando.

Break Seen in Talks Between UAW and Ford

by KIT KINCADE

Associated Press Writer

DETROIT (AP) — The United Auto Workers Union and the strikebound Ford Motor Co. last night declared a 24-hour news blackout on their contract talks, a move that traditionally heralds a break in deadlocked bargaining.

The blackout, announced in a joint statement on the 34th day of the strike by 160,000 Ford workers, means each side has agreed to make no public statements about the talks until 9 p.m. today.

Usually a news embargo during contract talks means either that the company is making a new offer, or the union is altering its demands. But in the wake of the blackout, neither side would explain what, if anything, was developing in negotiations.

The two sides were meeting separately, at the vast Ford headquarters in suburban Dearborn, but a union spokesman said the bargaining teams, including UAW President Walter P. Reuther, had been in communication "by various means."

The joint declaration said the blackout was set "in the hope that this might facilitate serious and meaningful collective bargaining."

The blackout came on the eve of the regular meeting of Ford's board of directors today. Their business, which could include consideration of a contract package, is expected to be concluded before the embargo expires.

Even before the announcement of a news blackout, there had been speculation that changes were being made in the bargaining position of one, or both, sides.

The two sides had been scheduled to meet at 2:30 p.m. yesterday, but postponed their session and instead announced they would meet for the first time since the strike started Sept. 6.

Word followed in early evening that the two sides again had postponed a confrontation, but that they would continue separate sessions at the Ford headquarters, known as the Glass House.

On Aug. 29, Ford made its only offer to date, and the union rejected it as inadequate.

Soviet Budget Promises More Guns and Butter For Allies

By HENRY S. BRADSHAW

Associated Press Writer

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union announced yesterday one of the biggest increases in defense spending in its history to bolster North Vietnam and to aid Arab nations.

Finance Minister Vasily F. Garbuzov told Parliament a 15 per cent increase was necessary because "international tension demands increased attention to our defenses."

Then he noted that the Soviet Union firmly supports "the Vietnamese people in their struggle against the criminal aggression of American imperialism" and "the just struggle of the people of Arab countries against aggressive actions of Israel, against its imperialist patrons."

The defense increase, largest announced since the Berlin crisis of 1961, will bring publicly disclosed defense spending to $18.6 billion, 13.5 per cent of the 1968 budget.

About half of actual Soviet military spending is believed by Western analysts to be hidden under other budgetary headings. The published defense budget is primarily a reflection of political trends, these analysts say.

The United States spent $67 billion for defense this fiscal year and President Johnson has asked for $72.3 billion for 1967-68.

Western observers suggested the Soviet increase for 1968 might be primarily intended to emphasize Soviet support for North Vietnam and for Arab losers in the Middle East war last June.

In the past, Soviet foreign military aid was not mentioned in budget reports and was believed hidden in the budget. Now, the observers suggested, it might be coming into the public figures for political reasons.

Garbuzov said the Soviet Union will also increase its defense capacity.

The Soviet Union has sent hundreds of millions of dollars worth of weapons to the defeated Arab countries, Egypt and Syria. Last month it signed a 1968 aid agreement with North Vietnam which it hinted was larger than the current one — estimated by Washington to involve a billion dollars this year.

The nation's chief economic planner, Deputy Premier Nikolai K. Baibakov, spoke on the 1967 economic growth, the plan for 1968 and predictions through 1970.

The following points emerged from what he said and what he carefully avoided saying:

— The Soviet economy continues to grow at a healthy rate. In general, 1967 growth plans are being achieved. Living standards are rising.

— National income was up an average of 7.2 per cent a year in 1966 and 1967. Since the 1966 claim was a 7.5 per cent rise, this meant a lower rate this year, although still above the plane.

— The rise in average urban pay slowed a little but still registered a 3.5 per cent gain, to $113.83 a month this year. A 6 per cent rise was promised for 1968.

Settlement of Haulers Strike Now Up to Teamsters Union

By BEN DE FOREST
ASSOCIATED PRESS WRITER

PITTSBURGH (AP) — An unusual seven-state mediation team came up with a program for settling the violent, eight-state steel haulers strike yesterday. Leaders of the striking drivers said they approved.

If also approved by the Teamsters Union, the trucking companies and the 10,000 to 20,000 drivers, steel could possibly start moving again within four days. The five-point program appeared to touch all the demands made by the truckers. The recommendations would give strikers a 5 per cent rate boost and $10 an hour beyond the first two hours they wait in mills to get loaded. They had demanded a 6 per cent rate hike and $15 an hour after waiting the first two hours at no pay.

William J. Hart, Pennsylvania secretary of labor and industry, the man who shepherded the negotiations, said he was not so optimistic.

"Unfortunately," he told reporters, "we cannot report to you that we have succeeded in our endeavors. I would be indulging in wishful thinking if I said the trucks would roll soon."

He said one group of carriers will decide today whether it would accept the proposals. Another, the National Steel Carriers Association, will give its answer in four days, he said. There was no commitment from the Teamsters on when it would respond, Hart said.

Meanwhile, violence continued. Shots were fired into two trucking company offices near Middletown, Ohio. Two truck windshields were smashed in western Pennsylvania; one on the Turnpike west of Bedford and the other near Washington on Interstate 70.

Police said a convoy of 15 steel-carrying trucks was fired upon near Geneva, N.Y. A bullet hit the windshield of one truck, but no injuries were reported. The strike, which started about two months ago, has resulted in one death and 10 injuries. A trucker was killed in Michigan, and five persons were injured in Ohio, three in Western Pennsylvania and one each in Indiana and Michigan.

Pennsylvania, one of the hotbeds of trouble, has had 163 trucks damaged, 43 shootings and 28 arrests. Meanwhile, the U.S. attorney's office in Pittsburgh said it has started no prosecutions, but indicated some may be started.

A FBI spokesman in Pittsburgh said his office had made "quite a few" investigations on complaints and turned over the findings to the U.S. attorney.

The strikers, who own their own trucks and lease them to shipping companies, want their slice of the rates jumped from 73 to 79 per cent. They also want paid $15 an hour for after waiting at mill loading docks for two hours. However, they say they're more interested in getting loaded quickly.

The seven-state strike has snarled shipments at many northeastern steel mills and forced some to furlough workers.

MOVE TO END TRUCKERS STRIKE

MARIJUANA SMOKER

Principal to Appeal Dismissal

NICASIO, Calif. (AP) — The marijuana-smoking principal of Nicasio Elementary School said yesterday she would appeal her dismissal in order to test California laws against the drug.

Mrs. Garnet E. Brennan, 58, was fired by the three-member school board Monday night at a protracted and crowded hearing in her school room in this pastoral village 35 miles north of San Francisco.

The situation arose when Mrs. Brennan filed an affidavit in San Francisco Superior Court, stating she had smoked marijuana regularly for 18 years and considered it beneficial.

Her affidavit was one of 46 filed in an effort to mitigate punishment of a Mill Valley mechanic found guilty of trafficking in the drug.

The hearing was jammed not only by parents but by a number of city people who argued on behalf of marijuana.

Mrs. Brennan remained silent but her attorney, Molly Minudri, contended the drug was harmless.

The parents' position was summarized by Paul Farley, who declared, "These outsiders can say what they want, and I don't give a damn, but I'll be damned if my children are going to be taught by a person who smokes marijuana."

The board retired into a brief private session and emerged to announce that Mrs. Brennan was being fired from her $7,300-a-year job on grounds of immoral conduct.

Union Hits Four ABC-TV Personalities With Fines

NEW YORK (AP) — Four of the American Broadcasting Co.'s on-camera personalities were fined by their performers union yesterday, for crossing picket lines of a sister union of striking network technicians.

The four were among performers who claim to hold individual contracts with ABC, which the network said supercede their obligations to their union, the AFL-CIO American Federation of Television and Radio Artists.

The union said disciplinary action is being considered against others for crossing picket lines of the striking AFL-CIO National Association of Broadcast Employees and Technicians.

NABET's 1,500 ABC employees struck Sept. 22. They supported an AFTRA strike last spring and the performers union sought to reciprocate.

Those fined by AFTRA were Tex Antoine, an ABC weatherman in New York, $14,000; newscaster Bill Beutel, $12,000; and newscaster John Schubeck, $11,400.

Also held guilty of violating the union mandate was commentator Jimmy Breslin, with the amount of his fine yet to be determined.

NABET's contract deadlock with ABC has failed to halt network operations, which have been maintained in part by supervisory employees. Among AFTRA performers who have refused to appear since the NABET strike began is Joey Bishop, the network's late night star. Tapes of his previous shows have been substituted.

Meanwhile, NABET announced its members at the National Broadcasting Co. had approved, almost 2 to 1, a new three-year contract with that network that was worked out without a strike. The pact increases the current weekly average salary of $218 to $260 by next October and reduces the current 40-hour work week to 37 1/2 hours next year.

Warren High Students Undertake Big Project

A group of Warren Area High School students has an unusual project — and an unusual way of raising money for it.

David Dare, teacher of German at the school, said last night that members of the sophomore German classes have decided to take a trip to Europe three years from now, after they graduate. They need to raise $30,000 for the trip, in which 30 students will take part.

As the first step towards their goal, they are sponsoring three showings of "Young Americans," a recently released Columbia picture, at the Library Theatre Thursday, Oct. 19. The movie will run from Oct. 18 to Oct. 21, but only the Thursday showings will be related to the student project.

A percentage of the proceeds from the showings will go towards the Europe trip, theatre manager Robert Marrone said. He said that if this experiment succeeds, he will consider offering the theatre for fund-raising by other civic groups. "Young Americans" is the story of a concert tour by a chorus of the same name. It covers their adventures as they tour America from California to Massachusetts. The group, made up of 36 teenagers, has appeared on several network television shows.

Tickets for the movie may be purchased from the German students taking part in the project.

Gas Station 'Giveaway' Pays Off Here

There are a lot of happy motorists in the Warren area these past few days. The Finders Keepers cash giveaway being conducted at Keystone Service Stations had been scheduled to expire September 30, but was extended due to its popularity. A new shipment of tickets received in time to be distributed to stations last week seemed to favor Warren area motorists with a bountiful supply of $1000, $100, and $50 winners.

Reports from DeVore's, Ettinger's, Glade Keystone, Johnson's, Steber's, Slack's, Matton's Keystone Service in Warren, Sahnoff's Keystone in Sugar Grove and Martin's in Russell indicated a great many winners in amounts ranging up to $1000.

Officials at United stated they are uncertain as to why so many should appear at one time, and have temporarily suspended the Finders Keepers game until a new supply of tickets can be obtained. They say they want to make certain that Keystone customers in other areas receive their fair share of winners, and that everyone playing the game has an equal chance to win. No purchases are necessary, they say, in order to receive a ticket when Finders Keepers is resumed.

Keystone Gasoline is marketed in Western New York, Western Pennsylvania, and Northeastern Ohio.

Boys Can Join Scouts Tonight

"Boys can get in on the fun and adventure of Cub Scouting and Boy Scouting if they attend School Night for Scouting with their parents at their local public school tonight," Charles W. Schaaf, council school night coordinator announced yesterday.

The opportunity to enroll as Cub Scouts and Boy Scouts will be available to boys at 17 schools in the Chief Cornplanter Council of the Boy Scouts of America which serves Warren County and Ludlow. The meetings are scheduled for 7:30.

Cub Scout packs and Boy Scout troops in the area served by each school will be represented at the School Night for Scouting and will help parents register their sons as Scouts and explain the Scout program, Schaaf said. "Scouting offers a variety of experience for a boy, challenges his mind and muscles, gives him an opportunity to develop self-confidence, and brings him the satisfaction of service to others and the fun of working together," Schaaf said.

Engineering Grad

William Jones 99 Barrett ave., Jamestown, N.Y., has recently completed division 2 of mechanical engineering and has received his certificate from International Correspondence Schools, Scranton, Pa., according to L. E. Johnson, area representative of I.C.S.

Jones was employed as a design draftsman when first enrolling with I.C.S. and has been recently promoted to methods engineer with Blackstone Corp. Jamestown, N.Y. He has re-enrolled with I.C.S. for division 3, mechanical engineering.

Dogs Look For Homes

The Warren County Humane Society has the following dogs seeking homes: a fawn colored terrier and cocker spaniel female, three years old; two full grown collies, both male, one black and white and one brown and white.

Also: a female part poodle, black, about four months old; male part poodle, charcoal, about six months; male hound, white with black and brown face, about nine months and a female, black and tan short-haired dog about eight months old.

The Society also has a black male spaniel about one year old. It is hoped the owner of this fine dog can be located since he cries constantly for his lost master. This dog was found on the south side. The number to call is 723-6235.

Water, Air and Now Land

We all realize that water pollution has reached a point where we must be concerned if future generations, or even the tailend of our own, are to enjoy the health and pleasures clean water can provide.

We are also aware that air pollution exists and must be controlled or the consequences will be disastrous.

But do we realize what is happening to our lands?

Do we realize that erosion is actually tearing the ground from beneath our feet year after year and carrying it off to the oceans? Well, this is a fact. For it has been estimated that since the founding of our country more than one-half of the productive top soil from our agricultural lands has been carried away to the seas, and that every 24 hours our waterways carry off enough top soil to cover 1000 acres of farmland to a depth of six inches.

Need a Profitless Rathole

(c) N. Y. Times News Service
WASHINGTON—At times like these Congress thinks back regretfully to the time it voted against setting up a cabinet Department of Waste.

The department was first proposed decades ago by the late senator Merle Survine, the grand old man of the economy bloc whose incessant election was the fruit of his relentless opposition to wasting public money anywhere except in his own constituency, the now sunken state of Massachusetts.

Baker

man of the Appropriations Committee, against excessive government spending.

Towards the end — Survine, unfortunately, perished with most of his state finally buckled under the weight of a new veteran's administration hospital and slid to rest under 300 feet of water on the continental shelf — the senator found it increasingly difficult to make the heroic reductions in federal spending which the country had come to expect of him.

His colleagues in Senate and House had begun to make common cause against the old man. It was all very well for him to fight spending, they agreed. What they disliked was his insistence upon fighting spending in their states.

Survine, who was nobody's fool, saw the handwriting. He proposed establishing what he called the United States Ratholes Department.

Its job, as he outlined it, would be the development and execution of enormous projects for wasting vast sums of federal money, or, as he put it, for "pouring money down the ratholes of the world."

"Periodically," he explained, "every congressman who wants to be re-elected has to come out for slashing the belabors out of the federal budget. The trouble is that every part of that budget is essential to some congressman's re-election.

"With a ratholes department throwing away ten or fifteen billion a year, the problem solves itself. Whenever Congress needs to go on an anti-spending binge to get re-elected, we just slash six or eight billion out of the ratholes budget. The voters are happy because we're fighting waste, and no congressman loses any of the federal gravy he needs to get himself returned to Washington."

The idea was well liked in Congress, but securing votes to establish the new department presented obvious problems. For one, no congressman dared risk casting a vote for an act with "ratholes" in its title. Survine changed his brainchild's name to Department of Waste, reasoning that the electorate could be persuaded to support waste if assured that it would at last be conducted with the organization and efficiency that a cabinet department could bring to the task.

The difficulty, which proved fatal to the plan, arose from the question of precisely how vast sums of money could be thrown away by the new department. With ten billion to squander, Waste would inevitably face irresistible pressure from congressmen demanding that a fair proportion of the budget be wasted in their districts.

If, for example, there were $500,000 earmarked for producing hand-illuminated manuscripts of the maxims of Calvin Coolidge, contracts would have to be divided among ten or fifteen states. Within short order, attempts to cut spending by canceling these contracts would endanger the careers of twenty or thirty senators threatened by the vengeance of their states' unemployed manuscript hand illuminators.

In alliance with other congressmen threatened with loss of such vital federally-supported waste industries as horse-collar manufacture and toadstool culture, they could make it impossible to cut a cent from Waste's budget. No one was able to think of a single way to waste money that would not eventually become essential to some congressman's re-election.

Nowadays, with Congress again forced to cut spending or take a beating, many congressmen wish their predecessors had at least appointed a committee to invent new techniques of pure superfluous waste. Because they failed, the present Congress faces the awkward problem of cutting spending to get re-elected without getting defeated by cutting spending.

JIM BISHOP Sickles And Hammer

BERLIN, Germany—The sun was generous and impartial. It warmed the 100-mile wall around West Berlin and nourished the little trees growing in the stone walls of bombed out buildings in East Berlin. It cast reflective beams in the windows of shops along the Kurfurstendamm and crayed on a caricature shadow of Brandenburg Tor on the pavement.

The afternoon was cool and bright. On the Havel, boats with white sails leaned lazily in the breeze and, at Wansee, families sat under linden trees eating goulash and spaetzel and ananasmitt-schlag, and the leaves overhead polka-dotted the faces. The white-aproned waiters walked at top speed carrying six steins of beer in each hand, never seeing the veil of foam trailing along the gravel paths.

Old ladies in neat cloth coats and white velvet fedoras bent close to their plates as they ate and listened to the family gossip from younger heads. On the autobahn, toy automobiles raced west at speeds up to 120 kilometers an hour and, at Templehof, a clutch of black birds sat on the concrete runway until they saw the big silver bird race toward them, shrieking. They flew away in a long casual curve, as though they had seen this bird before.

There never was a war. The sun was never blotted by a thousand American bombers. Zhukov and Koniev never raced down Unter den Linden, sacrificing whole regiments of Russians in a personal vendetta to get here first. That dark mound of earth with the blanket of clover—it cannot cover the Fuehrerbunker and the brittle bones of Adolf Hitler and his smirking bride, Eva Braun.

Many buildings are pocked. Can it be old shrapnel? A Jewish family, Mr. and Mrs. Sol Schwartz, from Buffalo, checks in to the Sylter Hof. They are visiting their army son. The parents are luminous with smiles. The hotel manager, in morning coat and striped trousers, bows from the waist. Is this Berlin? Or was there another—a Mr. Hyde to this Dr. Jekyll?

Six thousand Jews live in West Berlin. They have three temples. No one says Kaddish for the Man from Munich.

The steeple of the Kaiser Wilhelm Kirche still points at the pale sky, but the top half has been chewed off as an angry man might bite a cigar. Around it the Berliners have built a modern church. "We keep the steeple," they say, "to remind us never to go to war again."

Ah, then there was a war. This city of over two million does remember. Nor, typically Teutonic, will it permit itself to forget. The conflict ended 22 years ago. But the victors are still in Berlin — the Russians, the Americans, the British, and a group the Germans defeated—the French.

The sun sees it all, as it moves slowly on its daily trip from Moscow to Peking, by way of Washington. The winners shattered the city and, as a reward, gave the Germans two Berlins. One is industrious and prosperous and built its new metropolis of glass on the burned-out ghosts of another era. The other is similar and sullen and catches crumbs from the victors.

Along the edge of Wansee, I watch the sun grow cold and low. The diners still sit at tables, and the German jokes are swift. Here, in Himmler's house, the teacher in place-nez once said: "The Fuehrer has ordered me to settle the Jewish question once and for all." The spinning leaves whisper "No." These old ladies. They were younger twenty-two years ago. So were the Russian soldiers. They arrived in foraging groups. The only German phrase they could speak was "Frau, kommen." No shock shows on the faces of the old ladies. No Nazi armband adorns the sleeve of the running waiter.

The rubble which was too broken to be used for rebuilding was made into a 200-foot ski slide. When the snows come to he north Prussian plain, the happy children often slide down over the blood of their ancestors. But these are not happy thoughts, proper thoughts. This is a new age, a time when middle-aged writers should find it easy to forget. Berlin is big and rich and happy.

A young German stood before the wall and pointed to a Soviet flag in the bluish cast of evening. It snapped out in the light breeze and fell against the staff. "What is the sickle for?" he said to his father. "For farmers and food," the man said. The child was silent. Then he murmured: "What does the hammer represent?" The father smiled faintly. "Intelligence," he said. . .

May Rescue Antipoverty Plans

WASHINGTON — The Congressional merry-go-round over poverty has now rolled almost completely around to where it started, as far as the Republicans are concerned.

One group of GOP freshmen has finally decided that there is perhaps something good about Sargent Shriver's program to relieve big city race riots and rural Mississippi starvation.

It is a complicated story of political jockeying inside the House Education and Labor Committee which writes the poverty legislation and which the public can't easily understand. However, here is the inside story of what happened:

ROUND ONE occurred near the start of the Congressional session when the two GOP sparkplugs inside the Education and Labor Committee, Albert Quie of Minnesota and Charlie Goodell of New York, launched a move to make the Office of Economic Opportunity — better known as antipoverty — disappear altogether.

Actually it was a now-you-see-it-now-you-don't maneuver whereby the chief functions of OEO, such as Head Start and Job Corps vocational training, were to be transferred to the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare under the new Republican name "Opportunity Crusade." The Democratic name "Office of Economic Opportunity" was to vanish.

Last year Quie and Goodell developed a great affection for the Labor Department, to which they wanted to transfer OEO functions. This year their affection was for HEW.

ROUND TWO developed when genial Bill Ayres of Akron, top Republican on the committee, got tired of having Quie and Goodell grab the lime-light. He took another Ohio Republican, John Ashbrook, down to Cincinnati to investigate poverty.

They went at the request of newly-elected Republican Donald Clancy, who wanted to promote some candidates to the Cincinnati city council by showing up the inefficiency of the antipoverty program.

However, the Cincinnati Enquirer, a pro-

Pearson

Republican paper, endorsed what Shriver was already doing, said his program had got off with flying colors. The Ayres-Ashbrook hearings laid an egg.

ROUND THREE developed when four junior Republicans on the Education and Labor Committee came to the conclusion that poverty should be above politics.

The four Congressmen are: Ogden Reid of swank suburban Westchester County, N. Y., who did a great job as ambassador to Israel; John R. Dellenbach of Medford, Ore.; William A. Steiger of Oshkosh, Wis., the luggage city; and Marvin Esch of Ann Arbor, site of the University of Michigan. The last three are freshmen.

At first their views on the antipoverty program were negative. They were inclined to agree with Quie and Goodell that it should be abolished. However, after listening to approximately 500 witnesses, of whom only three favored dismantling OEO, the above four Republicans coiled on substituting the Republican named "Opportunity Crusade" for the Democratic named "Office of Economic Opportunity."

That's where the matter now stands, Minnesota's Quie is inclined to go along with the junior Republicans. Why change the name for the sake of politics and shift OEO functions to other agencies?

Goodell, one of the top leaders among House Republicans, isn't yet ready to retreat.

However, sentiment inside the Education and Labor Committee has definitely shifted toward a bipartisan bill similar to that in the Senate which will recognize the importance of upgrading skills to alleviate the two million unemployed who need job training.

Note — A big question mark remains on the Democratic side of the committee where Congresswoman Edith Green of Portland, Ore., sits in solitary splendor. Edith likes to be pampered and consulted, and Chairman Carl Perkins, the conscientious Kentuckian, doesn't do it as much as the charming, unpredictable Adam Clayton Powell, who preceded him as chairman.

The Burden of Modernity

In the preceding (articles) I have been talking about an unexpected similarity in the political experience of two such dissimilar men as Charles de Gaulle and Lyndon Johnson. Although they are so far apart in every way, they have one thing in common: they have put action in foreign affairs ahead of action at home.

This was a quite plausible thing to do: the world is a disorderly and dangerous place, and it has seemed to both of them that to do something about disorder, be it in Southeast Asia or in Europe, was more urgent than the bread-and-butter problem at home. But the fact of the matter is that both leaders have been losing that great popular support which they had when they first began. Neither has been able to realize the foreign objectives which have been his main preoccupation.

The opinion polls recently have been reading both in the Elysee and in the White House. They are showing that popular confidence cannot be won by actions abroad.

By the traditional standards of power politics, President Johnson has all the material resources needed for a successful diplomatic policy. But, unhappily for us all, he has landed this country in the most serious trouble it has had to face for at least a hundred years.

And Gen. de Gaulle, the most prophetic and experienced of living statesmen, has somehow entangled himself in costly and dangerous miscalculations both in Europe and in the Middle East.

One is tempted to say that the traditional game of power politics has become unplayable. For not only in Washington and Paris, but also in Moscow, Peking and London, the foreign offices and the diplomats are in trouble.

The Soviet Union finds itself vulnerable on its long Asian frontier with China, and it has made a humiliating hash of its opportunities and its interests in the Middle East.

Britain is in full retreat from what remains of its empire and also from its pretensions and obligations as a world power. Yet Britain has a long travail ahead of it before it will be able to play a satisfying part in Europe.

The powers which feel that they have duties and ambitions to fulfill abroad seem unable to prevail abroad. The United States has to put up with Castro's Cuba, and it is unable to carve an independent South Vietnam out of Indochina. The Soviet Union has to put up with the Russians and the Americans.

The frustrations of power politics are reflected everywhere in what is a strong tide of isolationist sentiment. To speak of isolationism in this connection, however, is not to say very much that is illuminating. I venture to think that we can begin to say a little more only when we start with the idea that the people everywhere are very preoccupied with the problems, with the pains and the pleasures which confront them because they are living in the midst of the most radical revolution in the history of mankind.

This revolution is a transformation of the human environment and of man himself by technological progress which, beginning about two centuries ago, has now acquired enormous momentum.

It is changing the way men live, not only their work and their houses, their food and their communications and their pleasures, but it is changing also the structure of the human family and the chemistry of the human personality. These changes are bewildering. They are frightening, and it is no wonder that the masses of mankind are much too absorbed in their own lives to care very much about what happens in some other country.

This experience accounts, I think, for the unpopularity of activity abroad. It is also a cause, perhaps the main cause, for the ineffectiveness and the failures of foreign activity. Nations cannot now be ordered around by coercing or cajoling or bribing their governments. For the masses are too much preoccupied with the problems of living in the modern world to respond to and to think about the abstractions, about foreign ideologies and even of distant national interests.

The game of power politics may again become playable some day if mankind can come to terms with the technological revolution. But this will not be in our time, and what we all have to realize—President Johnson and President de Gaulle and Chairman Kossygin and the rest of us—is that the solution of the internal problems of modern living must have priority over foreign affairs. France cannot remake Europe, and President Johnson cannot remake Asia. They have to remake France and America.

And if this be isolationism, so be it. It is nevertheless an almost universal human sentiment in the world today. (Last in a series)

Hire Praise Agents

HARRISBURG — Pennsylvania's lawmakers apparently are determined to put on a good public face—even if they have to hire professional press agents to do it for them.

At least this is what has happened for the first time in this legislative session insofar as a number of members of the House and Senate are concerned.

These professional praise agents are hired either by individual lawmakers or by a small group, the idea being of course to keep the lawmaker's face and name-good face, that is—before the good folks back home.

This has produced some interesting mimeograph work, as for example a senator announcing some innocuous local highway project which the State Department of Highways announces routinely anyway through conventional media, or perhaps there may be a General State Authority building project (about which he knows less) which again routinely is announced to the news media.

But the big gimmick of the press agents who have been hired by these lawmakers seems to be the almost constant issuance of unadulterated hot air pronouncements quoting this or that Senator or House member on perhaps a bill that the lawmaker happens to have been a sponsor of, which has just come out of committee, passed one house or the other, or perhaps even just dusted off a bit.

The idea of course is to get the lawmaker's name in print back home, hence when you see your local lawmaker's name in print consistently, chances are good it's the result of one of the professional publicity men hired by lawmakers.

Chances are good too the local lawmaker may not even have said what he is reputed to have said—or done!

Recently one such praise bit went out to a local newspaper in which the lawmaker in question was referred to as the prime sponsor of a piece of legislation. The story duly appeared, the real prime sponsor saw it, called the newspaper in irritation. A "correction" story was carried the following day by a hollering mad editor, duly noting that the local lawmaker was merely a co-sponsor.

Such legislative image-building is not sent out over the publicity man's name, of course, but over the name of the lawmaker in question.

This attempted image-building on the part of lawmakers is generally recognized by editors as nothing more than free political publicity, as opposed to legitimate "news" (which filters out such froth) moving to them via the wire services.

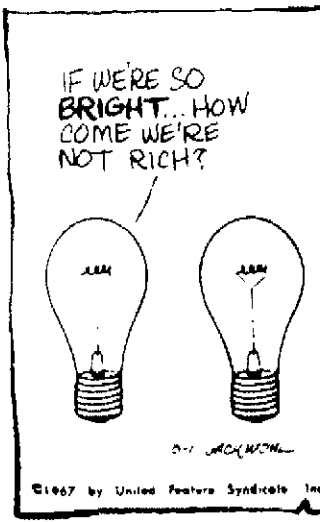

Speaking of image-building on the lawmaking level, here is a good illustration of what has to be overcome, and although it is an isolated instance, too many people (erroneously) have this general impression of lawmakers as a whole:

A member of the House of Representatives (from Philadelphia) asked the Speaker of the House for permission to address the House. This is what he said (believe it or not): "Mr. Speaker, on March 13, 1967, House bill number 628, printer's number 687 was introduced in this House. I agreed at that time to allow my name to be used as a sponsor, but, unfortunately, I did not read the contents, Mr. Speaker.

"Now I find that if this bill were to become law, each bottle of beer that I drink would have to have a label attached reading: 'Caution: The consumption of this bottle may be hazardous to your health.' Therefore, Mr. Speaker, due to the fact that I enjoy a good bottle of beer, I would ask the record to show that I would not support this legislation."

Legislative "responsibility" personified via a lawmaker publicly admitting sponsoring a bill he knew nothing about, had never even read! Image-building rests with lawmakers themselves, not paid publicity agents.

Erie Convict Divorced by Wife

ERIE—James Martin, appealing his May jury conviction on a charge of attempt with intent to kill in the February shooting at an Erie policeman, was divorced by his wife.

Mrs. Barbara J. Martin, 27, was granted a divorce from her husband in Erie County court, dissolving their three and a half year marriage.

"Cruelty and indignities" were cited as grounds for the divorce. Martin, 25, is serving the maximum three and a half to seven year prison sentence at Rockview Prison of Western State Penitentiary. However, he is appealing the conviction on grounds of jury tampering.

Mrs. Martin was granted custody of their child.

Martin, a vice president of the Erie motorcycle gang, "God's Children," was returned to Rockview from Erie County jail last Thursday. He had been brought back for questioning of jurors who convicted him, to determine if they were influenced by a telephone threat to one or more the night before deliberating the case.

All but one juror were questioned during a closed court hearing last week. The unquested juror had just been released from the hospital.

President Judge Edward H. Carney has indicated the juror may be questioned in his home in the presence of Martin's counsel and the district attorney.

A decision on the appeal will be withheld until the 12th juror is examined.

Area Men Serving In the Armed Forces

Seaman Recruit Daniel A. Reiff, USN, 18, son of Mr. and Mrs. Franz L. Reiff of Route 1, Clarendon, has been graduated from nine weeks of Navy basic training at the Naval Training Center in Great Lakes, Ill.

Cy S. Johnson, 22, son of Mr. and Mrs. Russell W. Johnson, 89 Highland Road, Kane, was commissioned an Army second lieutenant after graduating from the Infantry Officer Candidate School, Ft. Benning, Ga., September 28.

Private 1/c Robert C. Anthony, 20, son of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Anthony, Youngsville, completed an electronics specialist course October 6 at the Army Signal School, Ft. Monmouth, N. J.

During the course, he was trained to operate and maintain various Army electronic equipment. His wife, Barbara, lives on Route 2, Pittsfield.

KNOW WHEN OUR SHIP CAME IN?

In 1859.

That was the year an imaginative 26-year old, named George H. Hartford, had a brilliant idea.

The idea? Buy tea direct from the Orient by the clipper shipload.

Eliminate expensive in-between costs. Sell directly to the public, at great savings... a small profit.

1859...that's when our ship came in. That was the beginning.

That's when our founder showed he cared about people.

Today, in keeping with that proud heritage, A&P is still dedicated to bringing the most good food, to the most people for the least amount of money.

Today, more than a century later, we can honestly say, "WE CARE...about you."

Is this a good reason for shopping A&P? It's one of many.

Tidioute Contest

It's that time of year again, so our neighbors downriver are all set to stage another Pennsylvania Fishing Championship Tournament—the once-a-year event that has made Tidioute famous. And as they gain experience at fitting together all the events that go to make the tournament entertaining to both the fisherman and his family, every facet of the event improves.

So much so, that this year's tournament can and should be proclaimed the ultimate in outdoor entertainment. For while fishing maybe heading up the "bill," it is far from the only means of entertainment to be had.

As yet, I haven't been furnished a schedule of the various events that will be a part of the overall entertainment this year, but judging from past years, there will be (in addition to the fishing, of course) a parade, street carnival, meals served by various Tidioute organizations, and a street dance. Mix these ingredients with a liberal sprinkling of Tidioute's brand of hospitality and you're bound to come up with the best darn festival this side of the Pecos.

From a personal viewpoint I would say that the kid who misses the parade, the grown person who doesn't get down there for a chicken barbeque or a smorgasbord, and the teen-ager who misses the street dance have all really missed SOMETHING.

And the fisherman who doesn't get down there to try his luck in the open competition part of the tournament is really missing something too.

The events mentioned up to this point are all a part of the Saturday (October 14) program. Sunday's activity is limited mostly to the finals of the contest and the awarding of the trophies won, but it's surprising how many persons this ceremony attracts.

As I remember, previous tournaments have been won by three local anglers and two from the Pittsburgh area. George Wagner of Clarendon has been the only two-time winner having taken the championship in both '64 and '65. So the question comes up, "Who will it be this year?"

Well, for one thing it will be a darn good fisherman. For I haven't seen a year yet that I thought equalled this one for handicapping the aspirant to the throne in about every way possible.

All this summer we have had scads of rain that has kept the river running well above what might be termed average. And all year the fish in the river have been presented a full menu of their most preferred forage. So the going is going to be tough for there are not going to be many hungry fish around.

Especially since the river has been running at what might be termed flood stage now that the Kinzua Dam is operating, and there is just about a 50-50 chance that it will be down to a good fishing level by either Friday or Saturday. There had been some arrangements made to have the Corps of Engineers drop the flow just for the contest, but the last time I talked with Jack Ewers (manager at the dam) he said that the new Colonel in the Pittsburgh office has stated that such adjustments can't be made as they deviate from the control plan set by Congress.

If this is the case, we could have some really tough fishing both Saturday and Sunday as most of the contestants won't be able to find the fish in the high water. Fish move around when the water is high, so the angler that has any luck will be someone familiar with the stream under such conditions, or someone who has had enough experience to "read the water."

But regardless, I expect to see the largest field of contestants yet at this year's event. Word of the Tidioute contest has been spread around a lot over the past few years and a lot of the boys who have been going hot on other major fishing streams will be showing up to lay claim to the title. The greatest competition could come, I think, from the fishermen of Pine Creek and the Raystown Branch. That's two parts of the state where the rodbenders are taught fishing before they're taught 'readin', 'ritin', and 'rithmetic.

If they're from down Pine Creek way, it's most likely they'll stick to fishing live bait or streamers, but if they come up from the Raystown Branch they'll be jig fishermen who don't believe jigs should be made in any color but white. And from my personal experiences, I really don't think the walleyes of the Raystown Branch can see any other color but white, at least I never caught one there on any other colored jig.

But they'll find our Allegheny River fisharen't so particular. Any color jig will work well in our local stream if the fisherman knows how to handle it. For "handling it" is the secret of jig fishing.

But why talk about jigs? Everyone knows that this year's champ will win the crown with live bait—even if he does come in to headquarters and report that he caught his string on what's-its-name plug. As the old saying goes, it takes a fish to catch a fish.

WINNER FOR LOCAL KENNEL

Cobham Kennel, owned by Mrs. Kenneth Lawson of Bauer street ext., Warren recently completed a very successful show season. Cobham's Basenji Sir Gawaine (pictured above) took winners Dog honors at the Westchester, N.Y. Kennel Club Dog Show on September 10 and also won points at Marion, Ohio and Elmira, N.Y. The judge at Westchester was Mrs. Van Court (left) of California. Shirley Chambers was Sir Gawaine's handler.

Tidioute Fishing Champs In Penna. Contest Sunday

BIG MUSKIE

Doug Perrett of 363 Merick st., Pleasantville, hooked this 37-inch muskie last Friday near the boat launch just above the river bridge at Tidioute. It was the largest muskie registered in the Tidioute summer fishing contest and assures Perrett a position as finalist in the 1967 Pennsylvania State Fishing Championship Tournament finals on Sunday, Oct. 15, at Tidioute.

Booster Club Meets Tonight

The Warren Sports Boosters will meet at 8 p.m. tonight at WAHS, Dragon Head Coach Toby Shea will be present to comment on films of last week's victory over Meadville and preview Saturday's contest against Olean.

Cowboy QB In Hospital

DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — Don Meredith, quarterback for the Dallas Cowboys of the National Football League, was admitted to Presbyterian Hospital yesterday suffering from rib injuries.

Club officials said it could not be determined whether he would be able to play Sunday against the New Orleans Saints in Dallas.

A spokesman said he could not determine whether any particular blow last Sunday caused an extension of the injury. The Cowboys beat Washington 17-14 with Meredith pulling the game out in the last 10 seconds with a scoring pass to Dan Reeves.

The team physician said Meredith will be kept in the hospital overnight and perhaps for a second night. He was placed in the hospital after he could not rest Monday night.

Dallas has two young quarterbacks, Craig Morton and Jerry Rhyme, who proved themselves highly competent during the season.

Winners of Tidioute's summer fishing contest, which ended last Saturday, have been named and thus become qualified to fish as finalists in the 1967 Pennsylvania State Fishing Championship Tournament at Tidioute this Sunday.

Doug Perrett, 363 Merick st., Pleasantville, won first place in the muskie class with a 37-inch "lunge" which he caught at Tidioute on the day before the contest ended.

Mrs. Ethel Smith, veteran Tidioute fisherman, will be in the state tournament finals again this year by virtue of winning in the great northern class. Mrs. Smith's entry topped the division at 26 3/4 inches.

Robert Rush, RD 2 Sharpesville, qualified as finalist by taking the largest walleye, 29 1/4 inches, in the summer contest. However, he notified the tournament committee that he will not be fishing in the tournament. His place will be taken by the runner-up in the walleye class, William Strauser of Allison Park.

Joseph Robinson, 455 Amherst ave., Coraopolis, was winner of the bass division in the summer contest but will be unable to take his place as a tournament finalist because he is serving with the armed forces in Vietnam. There is a tie for runner-up in this class and the finalist will be determined at tournament headquarters in Tidioute Saturday.

Monthly winners in September were Mrs. Smith, great northern, 26 3/4 inches; Richard Duffy, 108 Friday st., Pittsburgh 9, 25-inch walleye; and James J. Martin, Box 195, Cokeburg, 17 3/4-inch bass.

The monthly winners receive a Garcia spinning rod with case and first and second place winners in the summer contest also receive a trophy at crowning ceremonies Sunday afternoon.

NHL Opens Tonite, Hawks Defend Title

By BEN OLAN
Associated Press Sports Writer

The Chicago Black Hawks, with two new, established players but without their regular goalie, begin defense of their National Hockey League title tonite when the expanded circuit presents five games on its opening program.

The Black Hawks, season champions for the first time in their history last year, entertain the New York Rangers. In other games, Detroit is at Boston, Montreal at Pittsburgh, Minnesota at St. Louis and Philadelphia at California.

Denis DeJorja, a netminding standout for Chicago last season, is a holdout and Dave Dryden is expected to start against the Rangers. Dryden has limited big league experience.

Defenseman Gilles Marotte and center Pit Martin also will be in the Hawks' line-up. They were obtained in trades from Boston.

The Rangers will be at full strength. They assigned right winger Larry Micokey and defenseman Allan Hamilton to Buffalo of the American League Tuesday. This reduced their roster to 19 players, one over the limit.

The Bruins will start young Gerry Cheevers in goal against the Red Wings. Harry Shiden, Boston coach, said Ed Johnston, the club's regular goalie last season, will not start because of muscle spasms in his back.

Goalie Roger Crozier and defenseman Gary Bergman are Detroit's key men, according to Sid Abel, the Wings' general manager-coach. "Roger must come back with a big year," Abel stated. "Honestly think he has regained his touch."

Referring to Bergman, Abel commented, "He's the man who must come through for us on defense. He has speed, is offensive minded and has a good shot." The Wings placed fifth in 1966-67.

A total of 444 games will be played by 12 teams in a two-division setup this season compared to a 210-game slate by six clubs in 1966-67.

East Division teams include Montreal, Toronto, New York, Boston, Chicago and Detroit. The new teams will play in the West Division. They are California, Los Angeles, Minnesota, St. Louis, Pittsburgh and Philadelphia.

Toronto and Los Angeles open their seasons Saturday night, the Leafs against Chicago and Los Angeles against Philadelphia.

GETS RECORD SALARY FOR ATHLETE

Wilt Chamberlain Ends Holdout, Rejoins 76ers

By RALPH BERNSTEIN
Associated Press Sports Writer
PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Wilt Chamberlain ended his stubborn holdout yesterday, has agreed to sign with the National Basketball Association's Philadelphia 76ers for what is believed to be the highest salary ever paid an athlete.

Neither the terms of the contract, nor its length were immediately known, but the Associated Press learned it may gross Chamberlain upwards of $250,000. Apparently, however, the contract was for one year.

It has been reported that Chamberlain earned more than $200,000 last year in salary with the 76ers. He worked under a one year contract in 1966-67.

General Manager Jack Ramsay of the 76ers said Chamberlain has agreed to terms and the contract is sitting in the 76ers office waiting for Wilt to come and sign it.

Ramsay said he did not know where Chamberlain was, but it was believed the player had gone to the West Coast to clear up some personal matters. He said he had expected Chamberlain Monday and hoped he would show up today.

The 76ers play an exhibition game at Wilkes-Barre, Pa., tonight and Ramsay said it was possible Chamberlain would play. The 76ers, as they have been doing during the exhibition season, will take Wilt's bag with his playing equipment to the game.

Negotiations on Chamberlain's unprecedented pact were completed over the weekend at the home of 76ers owner Irv Kosloff. The agreement is believed to include a setup whereby Chamberlain will receive the money over a period of years for tax saving purposes, although it will be earned in the 1967-68 season. Chamberlain, who led the 76ers to the Eastern title over Boston and an eventual NBA championship victory over San Francisco, will be starting his ninth season in the league.

The 7-foot-1 Chamberlain finished third in the league scoring race after winning the title seven straight years. He sacrificed scoring four assists and rebounds in leading the 76ers to a recordbreaking 68 victories during regular season play.

He still managed to score 1,956 points, paced the league in rebounds with 1,957, and set a club record of 630 assists, a league mark for a center. He raised his career point total to over 23,000 and this year should hit the 25,000 mark.

Chamberlain has been embattled with 76ers' Kosloff over his 1966-67 contract for several months. He has charged Kosloff released him from the reserve clause which binds a player to a club for an additional year. On this premise the native Philadelphia, who has become a basketball legend in his time, negotiated with several teams in the new American Basketball Association.

He and Kosloff, however, finally negotiated their differences and eased the mind of Coach Alex Hannum, who said his team couldn't repeat without the big center.

The 31-year-old Chamberlain holds almost every offensive NBA record. He played college basketball at the University of Kansas and spent a year with the Harlem Globetrotters before joining the NBA with the old Philadelphia Warriors.

Chamberlain went to San Francisco with the Warriors for the 1962-63 season when the team was sold, and returned here as a member of the 76ers in a deal in January, 1964. Chamberlain has been named to the all-league teams and played in the All-Star game eight times.

Last season he had a 35 for 35 streak in field goal shooting en route to an unparalleled season mark of a 68.3 shooting percentage. His main weakness has continued to be poor shooting from the free throwline. Chamberlain has played 691 consecutive games from Oct. 1959 through March 1967, without fouling out, including playoff games.

Trojan Star Holds Slim Rush Margin

NEW YORK (AP) — O. J. Simpson of top-ranked Southern California holds a 45-yard lead in rushing over Eugene Morris of West Texas State, the latest major college football statistics disclosed yesterday.

Simpson, a junior halfback, has gained 602 yards to Morris' 557, according to the figures compiled by National Collegiate Sports Services.

MacArthur Lane of Utah State is third with 515 yards followed by Max Anderson of Arizona State, 455 and Butch Colson of East Carolina, 446.

Terry Stone of New Mexico is a double pace-setter. He is No. 1 in total offense with 916 yards and passing with 77 completions for 1,032 yards. He has been thrown for rushing losses of 116 yards.

Bob Cotte of Kansas State is the punting leader with a 45.7-yard average for 23 punts.

Sparta Tripped By West Forest

West Forest scored all its runs in the first inning yesterday to whip Sparta, 4-0 in an Upper Allegheny Valley Baseball League contest on the winner's diamond.

Huffman paced West Forest at the plate with a triple and Donato and McWilliams both hit doubles. A two-bagger by Harrison was Sparta's lone extra base knock.

Ellis twirled three-hit ball to notch the victory, fanning three. Kolaja, Linden and Allen all worked for Sparta, combining to strike out 11.

BOSOX GAMBLE ON WASLEWSKI AGAINST HUGHES FOR CARDS

Series Shifts to Fenway Today

By JACK HAND
Associated Press Sports Writer
BOSTON (AP) — Gary Waslewski, an obscure commuter between Fenway Park and the Toronto farm club, was the Boston Red Sox's hope to square the World Series in today's sixth game as the pitching foe of St. Louis, Dick Hughes.

Trailing 3-2 in games, Manager Dick Williams of the desperate Red Sox had to gamble on a pitcher with a 2-2 record against a 16-6 Cardinal regular in hopes of extending the Series to seven games and a third chance for Jim Lonborg.

A victory for the favored Cardinals, of course, would close out the Series and give St. Louis its eighth world title without the need of a third effort by Bob Gibson.

Both clubs worked out at Fenway Park Tuesday after arriving from St. Louis during the night. The skies were heavy with fog and there were forecasts of possible showers in the area.

"We have to win both games," said Williams. "All the players know it. We faced the same situation in the last two days of the season when we had to face Minnesota's best pitchers. We never had beaten Dean Chance all year and our ace Lonborg never had beaten the Twins.

"We think we'll win this ball game and then we'll have our ace come back against Gibson, another fellow we never have beaten."

Waslewski, just placed on the list of eligibles the day before the Series as a replacement for sore-armed Darrell Brandon, worked three perfect innings against the Cardinals in relief of Gary Bell in the third game.

The 26-year-old right-hander from Kensington, Conn., farmed out to Toronto twice this year, managed only a 5-6 record in the International League and has not started a game since Sept. 3 against Syracuse before about 1,000 people. Tendonitis in his right elbow, a sore back and a sore arm handicapped him after an 18-11 season for Williams at Toronto in 1966.

During his lifetime, the former Pittsburgh farm hand has had rheumatic fever, a collapsed lung and a heart murmur. After the Red Sox drafted him in the minors for $12,000 in 1964, the Pirates passed up a chance to get him back at half price, $6,000.

Williams decided to stick with the same line-up that won the fifth game in St. Louis. That meant Joe Foy will remain at third base and Ken Harrelson in right field. Dalton Jones, the leading hitter at .353, will remain on the bench.

The Cardinals' manager, Red Schoendienst, also planned to use the same batting order that has started each of the five previous games.

"We won the pennant on the road (52-28)," said Red. "So we'll win the World Series on the road."

Hughes, beaten 5-0 by Lonborg's one-hitter in the second game, is a candidate for rookie of the year honors in the National League. After nine years in the Cardinal chain gang the right-hander finally made the big show at the age of 29.

"I feel better about this start than the first," Hughes said. "I have had a lot of rest since Thursday and I have a better idea about the hitters. Last time I had my fast ball but I didn't have my good curve and slider."

Asked how he would pitch to Carl Yastrzemski the second time around, the bespectacled Arkansan unloaded a chew of tobacco and said, "I'll just give him my best pitch. Like I said before, the home run he hit was half a mistake. He made it a whole mistake. The ball was where I wanted it but it didn't have enough stuff."

Yastrzemski hit one homer off Hughes and the second off Joe Hoerner, the left-handed relief man.

If Waslewski wobbles, Williams will be sure to clean the bench for pitchers. However, he said he would not go to Lonborg on relief in any circumstances. If it should rain, Williams indicated he would stay with Waslewski.

Gary Bell, Lee Stange, Dave Morehead, Jose Santiago, John Wyatt and all the others will be standing by on a ready basis.

After five games the pitchers clearly are dominating the Series. St. Louis is hitting .210 and Boston .206. Things may change today when they train their sights on the wall in short left field.

World Series Briefs

Bookies Quote Toss-Up Today

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP)—The St. Louis Cardinals are heavy favorites to win the World Series in the next two games, but today's game is figured by Las Vegas oddsmakers as nearly a toss-up.

For today, the Cardinals are listed as 5-6 favorites, with the Boston Red Sox quoted 11-10 underdogs. The oddsmakers base their price on Dick Hughes pitching for St. Louis and Gary Waslewski pitching for Boston.

The bookmakers say the Cardinals are favored 1-3/4 to win the series, with Boston a 2-1/2 underdog.

The Cardinals lead the best-of-seven series 3-2.

will be determined by the commissioner after consulting with the president or other officials of the home club."

Dan Reeves Is 'Mr. Clutch' for Cowboys

By DICK COUCH
Associated Press Sports Writer
Versatile Dan Reeves, who called the final shot for Dallas' desperate Cowboys last Sunday at Washington and pulled a 17-14 victory out of his helmet, has been named the National Football League's Offensive Player of the Week by The Associated Press.

Reeves caught a 36-yard touchdown pass from Don Meredith with 18 seconds to play, carrying the Cowboys from behind to their third victory in four games. What's more, he called his own number on the play.

The Dallas running back used teammate Lance Rentzel as a decoy, driving Redskins linebacker Chris Hanburger toward the center of the field, then broke to the outside to snare Meredith's perfect pitch and go in for the winning score.

"We noticed that after Rentzel had begun to pick up yardage, Hanburger would do a little checking, then drop off to help the other defenders," Reeves explained. "As soon as I saw him make his move, I went out and cut toward the sidelines.

"When the ball was coming to me—it seemed it would never get there—I saw Hanburger try to get back. But it was too late for him."

It was just in time for the Cowboys, who had been stymied by Washington's stubborn defense.

Reeves, a third-year pro from the University of South Carolina, netted 35 yards on 20 carries and caught a pair of passes for 20 yards before clutching the winning TD strike.

Johnny Roland, St. Louis' elusive running back, pressed Reeves for the weekly prize. The Cardinals' second-year flash rambled for 122 yards and two touchdowns in a 34-24 comeback victory over Minnesota.

Roland scored on a three-yard run and a 14-yard bolt in the closing minutes and set up a pair of Jim Bakken field goals with 19 and 37-yard gainers.

Other ball-carriers who earned nominations were Philadelphia's Tom Woodeschick, who picked up 129 yards as the Eagles buried Atlanta 38-7 and Cleveland's Ernie Green, who broke loose for 108 yards in 11 tries and caught a 15-yard TD pass from Frank Ryan in a 21-10 triumph over Pittsburgh.

Quarterback John Brodie sparked for San Francisco in a 27-24 upset of Los Angeles, tossing scoring bombs of 59, 55 and 28 yards — the latter to Sonny Randle in the final period for the winning TD.

New York's Fran Tarkenton passed and ran the Giants to a 27-21 victory over New Orleans, hitting on 18 of 28 aeriels for 328 yards and two TDs and scrambling for 41 more yards.

Kent Nix, filling in for injured passer Bill Nelsen, and receiver Dick Compton were brilliant in defeat for the Steelers against Cleveland. Nix connected on 23 of 34 tosses for 218 yards and Compton caught 11 for 108.

Lander Area News

Thursday evening at 8 o'clock Commission on Missions and committee for School of Missions will meet at the parish house and all members are urged to attend.

The annual chicken barbecue sponsored by the Methodist Church has been postponed until October 21.

It will be held in the Parish House, and serving begins at 4 and to 8 p. m. Besides the chicken, the menu includes macaroni salad, apple sauce, pickles, rolls, coffee and milk.

A joint meeting of the Lander and Russell Preschool Mothers clubs was held in the Lander school with 32 in attendance.

Mrs. Bonnie Firth, first grade teacher, was guest speaker, and her topic was "Preparing Your Child for First Grade". She spoke on the responsibility the children should learn in caring for their own things, respect of discipline and respect for others.

The next joint meeting will be held at the Russell School on Nov. 7.

Each group held their own business meeting — Mrs. Robert Knopf presided for the Lander group and it was decided to purchase needed toys for the kindergarten class, especially needed for girls. There are 31 enrolled this year in the kindergarten class. Appointed to purchase these were Mrs. Spiller, Mrs. Philblad, Mrs. Stawski and Mrs. Weston Wilcox.

Mrs. Charles Gray presided for the Russell group and the kindergarten teacher, Mrs. Shirley Porter was given money to purchase needed toys for her classes.

To conclude, refreshments were served by the Lander club officers Mrs. Knopf, Mrs. Spiller, Mrs. Stawski and Mrs. Robert Van Ord.

On Oct. 1 Rev. Marvin Watson baptized Bradley Alan Ludwick, son of Mr. and Mrs. Alan Lud-wick, and Timmy Kenneth Hitchcock, son of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Hitchcock.

Miss Ruth Mills, Mrs. Donald Ludwick, Mrs. Stanley Hitchcock and Laddie Neel attended a District program planning seminar in Warren, Rev. Marvin Watson, local pastor, is the Kane District Director of the Christian Social Concern and had charge of that group.

The Lander WSCS meeting was held in the Parish House Wednesday with luncheon served by Mrs. Donald Ludwick and Mrs. Marvin Watson, to the members and three guests, Mrs. Laddie Neel, Mrs. Harold Bloomgren and Mrs. Alan Ludwick.

Mrs. Donald Ludwick presided at the business meeting,

Mrs. Kenneth Lindell reported on the ASCS dinner served and also a dinner will be served on Wednesday to the Penna. Farmers Association.

Mrs. Ludwick and Mrs. Stanley Hitchcock gave reports on the Sub-district Workshop held in the Grace Methodist Church in Warren and which was attended by 9 members of the local group.

Announcements were made of the annual observance of the "Call to Prayer and Self Denial" week, October 23-31; also the study class which will begin on October 22 and continue for four Sunday evenings. The title of the study is "That the World May Believe". The committee in charge are Mrs. Ludwick, chairman of the Commission on Missions, Laddie Neel, Mrs. Charles Riddle and Mrs. Leroy Christianson.

On October 22, a film strip will be shown "A Foundation for Dialogue" made by a group of Catholic Sisters in Racine, Wisconsin.

Sunshine committee reported Mrs. Myron Ludwick a surgical patient in the Warren General Hospital, and Mrs. Ella Hitchcock ill with shingles at her home.

Mrs. Elmer Swanson gave the devotion, using as her theme "Autumn". Mrs. Stanley Hitchcock was in charge of the program on United Nations, this being United Nations month, with Mrs. Allan Lindell, Mrs. Harry Light and Mrs. Neel taking part. The next meeting will be the

Ludlow Area News

By MRS. HILDUR WENSTRAN
World Wide Communion Day was celebrated at Moriah Church last Sunday. The Rev. Carl F. Ellason used for his preparatory sermon "A Battle of the Angels." Mrs. Mabelle Nelson directed the choir in the anthem "More Love to Thee." Flowers were in loving memory of Mrs. E. G. Nelson by the family.

The LCW monthly meeting was held at the church Wednesday evening with members from St. Paul's Church in Warren as guests. The president, Mrs. Linnea Olson welcomed members and guests. Mrs. Enoch Nelson introduced the soloist, Mrs. Violet Borg of Warren who sang a Jewish hymn "Eli, Eli".
Mrs. Mabelle Nelson then introduced the guest speaker for the evening, Mrs. Fannie Sainier of Kane who spoke of Customs of Judaism. Another solo by Mrs. Borg "Unto the Hill." She was accompanied by Mrs. Mary Campbell of Warren.

Pastor Ellason gave the devotions. Refreshments were served by the service committee. There were 60 present. A social hour followed.

The McKean County Society for Crippled Children will conduct a house-to-house canvass by a committee between October 8-14, the committee to be announced later. Chairman for the drive is Miss Catharine Juban and co-chairman Mrs. George Spilka.

A fire of unknown origin destroyed the office building formerly occupied by the J. G. Curtis Leather Company last Saturday evening. It was now owned by George Spilka and was used as a storage building by Mr. Spilka, lumbermill operator. Bernal Connelly also had stored many articles of sentimental value in the building. Sunday afternoon another fire destroyed the barn on the Walter Cox farm, now owned by Edward Depto which was also burned to the ground. Investigation into suspected arson into the two fires has been requested by State Fire Marshall John Paxton. The barn held 500 bales of hay and was partly covered by insurance.

Another fire was discovered Wednesday evening at the double-house owned by the Morelli-Zeeder families. The firemen said this was "definitely a set fire." A reward of $200 is being offered for leads to the cause of the fires. Kane and Sheffield Fire Departments have been called to the scene.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest W. Swanson were honored at a surprise party, observing their 40th wedding anniversary last Sunday at the De Forest Pavilion in Wilcat Park with 70 persons present. The party was arranged by Mr. and Mrs. David Swanson of Barnes, Mrs. Algot Swanson and Mrs. Robert Olson of Ludlow. A tureen supper was served from beautifully decorated tables. Saturday they received a dozen red rosebuds from their daughter and husband, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Porterfield of Miami, Fla. The guest book was in charge of their granddaughter Kerstin Swanson of Barnes.

Those assisting serving the supper were Mrs. David Swanson, Miss Nell Titus and Mrs. Ruth T. Miller of Barnes, Miss Myrtle Johnson, Mrs. Algot Swanson and Mrs. Robert Olson of Ludlow. The honored couple received many cards and gifts. Guests were from Allegany, Lakewood and Jamestown, N.Y., Erie, Warren, Barnes and Ludlow.

Mr. and Mrs. Forest Herron of Allegany, N.Y., returned home Thursday after visiting several days with Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Swanson.

Mr. and Mrs. Ewald Nelson and Mrs. E. G. Nelson of Erie, were Ludlow visitors last Sunday.

Miss Rose Nelson arrived home Thursday from a few days visit in Erie. She was accompanied home by Mrs. Reuben Johnson and Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Johnson of Erie.

Mrs. Beulah Carlson was dismissed from Warren General Hospital and taken home by ambulance Saturday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Ward Anderson and Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Anderson were weekend guests in Endicott, N.Y. at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Wolfe, to observe the birthday of Mrs. Wolfe. The three ladies are sisters.

Mrs. John Fox was dismissed from Kane Community Hospital where she has been a patient for several weeks following an accident.

Funeral services for Everett Donahy, 67, of Ludlow, retired mechanic and Kane area resident for many years whose death occurred unexpectedly Friday afternoon, were held Monday afternoon at a Kane Funeral Home with the Rev. Carl F. Ellason officiating. Linus Gillespie, Martin Carlson, Richard Payne, Robert Beckwith, Edmund Nelson and Paul Irwin served as pallbearers. Interment was in Gibbs Hill Cemetery.

Announcement has been made by John W. Cox of Ludlow of the engagement of his sister Mary E. Cox, to Robert H. Miles, son of Mr. and Mrs. Haven Miles of Conneville, Pa. No date has been set for the wedding.

The Misses Victoria and Mabel Peterson left Tuesday evening for three weeks vacation to visit their nephews and families, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Johnson in Spokane, Wash. and Mr. and Mrs. Neil Johnson of Fremont, Calif.

Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Ralston of Barnes entertained the following at a turkey dinner last Sunday for Mr. and Mrs. Frank Cliffe, Mavis Ralston, Patsy Ralston and Robert Orbanic of Warren, Terry Ralston of Schenectady, N.Y., Mrs. Ollie Blum of Bradford, Mrs. Ed Wenstran, and Mr. and Mrs. Bill Ralston of Ludlow and Mr. and Mrs. Lynn Ralston of Kane rd., Kenneth and Brenda Ralston of Barnes.

Guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Hanson Saturday evening were Mr. and Mrs. Mike Stenberg of North Warren and Mr. and Mrs. Irwin Stenberg of Ludlow who came to help in the celebration of Mr. Hanson's 85th birthday on Oct. 1.

Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Mortenson spent Saturday in Jamestown, N.Y. with her brother Harold Gustafson who also had a birthday on Saturday.

The Churchmen of Moriah Church were guests of the Churchmen of St. Matthews Church in Mt. Jewett Monday evening at a pancake supper. There were 14 from Ludlow and a good attendance from Kane. The men enjoyed pancakes, sausage and apple pie.

Russell Area Notes

The Win Them Class of the Methodist church met at the home of Mrs. Delbert Westfall, with Mrs. Ray Holt assisting the hostess.

Mrs. Bernice Peterson presided with Mrs. Mae Wood giving devotions. It was decided to bring the Christmas gifts for members of the Meadville Home for the Aged to the November meeting, which will be held one week later on November 14. This will be held at the home of Mrs. Larry Werner with Mrs. Lee Yaegle assisting the hostess. Mrs. Charles Pearson and Mrs. Mae Wood to furnish the program.

Mrs. Arthur Hummel showed slides on the Dupont flower gardens, they visited, while on vacation.

To conclude refreshments were served by the hostesses to the 18 members present.

ON RIGHT-OF-WAY ACQUISITION

Bill Would Speed Up Road Construction

By JOHN L. TAYLOR
HARRISBURG (AP) — The House passed legislation yesterday that would empower the Department of Highways to obtain rights-of-way earlier than is now authorized by law.

The vote sending the bill to the Senate was 115-77.

Under the proposal, the Department could begin securing the right-of-way for a project immediately after a route determination, rather than wait final design.

The Department of Highways was the leading proponent of the measure, calling it "must legislation" for the long-range planning of highway construction in Pennsylvania.

"This is a long step in the right direction that will provide the last needed support to give Pennsylvania a total six-year road building program," Robert G. Bartlett, secretary of highways, said in a statement. "Without the ability to acquire in advance, the program was not truly an encompassing long-range plan."

Opponents in the House argued the bill gave the department authority to take land through condemnation proceedings that it may not need.

"We must protect the property owner's right to own and hold property," said Rep. Percy G. For, R-Bedford, in a floor speech.

Rep. Edward W. McNally, D-Cambria, a co-sponsor of the bill, sought to assure the House that the Department of Highways was not "going into the real estate business."

Another co-sponsor, Rep. John Stauffer, R-Chester, said there was a provision in the bill for the department to sell land back to original owners if unused.

A spokesman in the Department of Highways said that by securing a right-of-way early, considerable money can be saved. He noted that in many instances land prices skyrocket when speculators hear a highway is being planned.

In other action, legislation that would require mandatory meat inspection in Pennsylvania was recommended to the Agriculture Committee, where it faced the possibility of amendments.

The proposal had the support of the Shafer Administration. Under present law, the inspection of meat in Pennsylvania is on a voluntary basis.

The House Basic Education Committee released two important measures to the floor. One would raise to six years the minimum age for school children starting first grade. The present minimum is 5 years, 7 months. The second bill would require that all history courses taught in Pennsylvania schools include the historic contributions of outstanding Negroes and members of other ethnic groups.

Offer Made to Break Impasse On Spending and Tax Increase

By EILEEN SHANAHAN
(C) N.Y. Times News Service
WASHINGTON — A proposal to cut the government's planned spending this year by 3 per cent in every agency — subject to reversal only upon a presidential finding of "urgent national interest" — was made yesterday by a key senator.

The proposal came from Sen. George A. Smathers of Florida, the second-ranking Democrat on the Senate Finance Committee, which handles tax legislation. It was designed, the senator said, to break the current impasse between Congress and the White House over tax and spending policy.

The impasse arose last week when the House Ways and Means Committee, in which all tax legislation must originate, voted to set the tax bill aside until the administration proposed major cuts in government spending.

The Smathers proposal stirred much informal discussion among members of Congress, but it appeared doubtful that it would serve to break the stalemate.

Some leaders of the economy bloc in the house said that the discretion given the President under the Smathers proposal was too broad.

"Take the highway program," said one member. "It would be easy enough to prove an urgent national interest was at stake. The President could just wait telegrams of protest from all 50 governors. He could get those easily."

On the administration's side, there also appeared to be relatively little receptiveness to the Smathers plan, despite persistent rumors in Congress that the proposal was actually the administration's idea.

Greek Junta Purges Officers

(C) N.Y. Times News Service
ATHENS — The Greek military junta, continuing its move to consolidate its power over the armed forces, purged three top officers of the national gendarmerie yesterday.

Along with this action against the semi-military national police force, there were reports that the junta was pressing King Constantine to replace an additional 150 army officers; 144 officers were retired Monday.

At the same time, the junta suggested that former Premier George Papandreu, leader of the Center Union party, might like to leave the country, adding that he was free to do so.

What appears to be a government campaign to get the 73-year-old leader, who was released from house arrest over the weekend, out of the country was immediately countered by an angry blast from Papandreu's supporters.

Post Confirmed

Eugene Manfrey's appointment to the board of trustees of the Scotland School for Veterans' Children in Lancaster County was confirmed last evening by the state senate, according to Sen. Richard Frame.

Shafer Hit For Keeping Mum on Roads

By WILLIAM E. DEIBLER
HARRISBURG (AP) — An official of the Associated Pennsylvania Constructors criticized Gov. Shafer yesterday for not speaking out again — a possible cutback in federal highway aid funds.

W. Guy Gunn, executive vice-president of the contractors' organization, urged the State Highway Commission to "get the Governor's Office to say something about this."

Gunn was referring to a telegram sent to the 50 governors Sunday by Alan S. Boyd, U.S. secretary of transportation, inviting them to comment as "rapidly as possible" on what would happen if the $4.4-billion-a-year-highway aid program was cut as much as 50 per cent.

"I read in the paper this morning statements from other governors opposing this," Gunn said, "but there was nothing from our governor."

The Associated Press had asked Shafer for comment Monday. However, a spokesman in the Governor's Office said at that time Shafer would not issue a statement until later.

Gunn's comments were made during a public hearing on the commission's current six-year improvement program.

Robert G. Bartlett, state secretary of highways, told Gunn the matter was under review by Shafer, and an answer would be made later.

Shafer, in Washington Tuesday to attend a White House luncheon, was not available for comment.

Earlier, Bartlett had told the commission he was "appalled to learn that the Appalachia road building and roadside beautification programs were being halted by executive orders from Washington."

"Inconsistent planning of the stop-and-go variety will cripple our program of highway development to stimulate an area's economy," Bartlett said.

Strike Moves Conventions

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Two medical conventions, which would have attracted 2,100 persons, have been moved from Pittsburgh to Lancaster because of a hotel strike.

The Pennsylvania Nurses Association and the Student Nurses Association said the convention would be held beginning Nov. 27. It was to have started at Pittsburgh's Penn. Sheraton Monday.

No developments were reported yesterday in the 11-day-old strike by the Hotel and Restaurant Workers Association. The union is demanding a no-sale clause.

Maverick Nation Calls For Withdrawal of Troops

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (AP) — Communist Romania, a maverick in the Soviet bloc, called yesterday for the withdrawal of all foreign troops from the countries of Eastern and Western Europe.

The proposal, put forward in a speech to the U.N. General Assembly by Romanian Deputy Foreign Minister Mircea Malitza, would apply to Soviet forces in Eastern Europe as well as the troops of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization in Western Europe.

Malitza told the assembly that "the process of full normalization of inter-European relations, based upon the equality of rights of all states, imperative calls for the withdrawal of non-European troops from Europe."

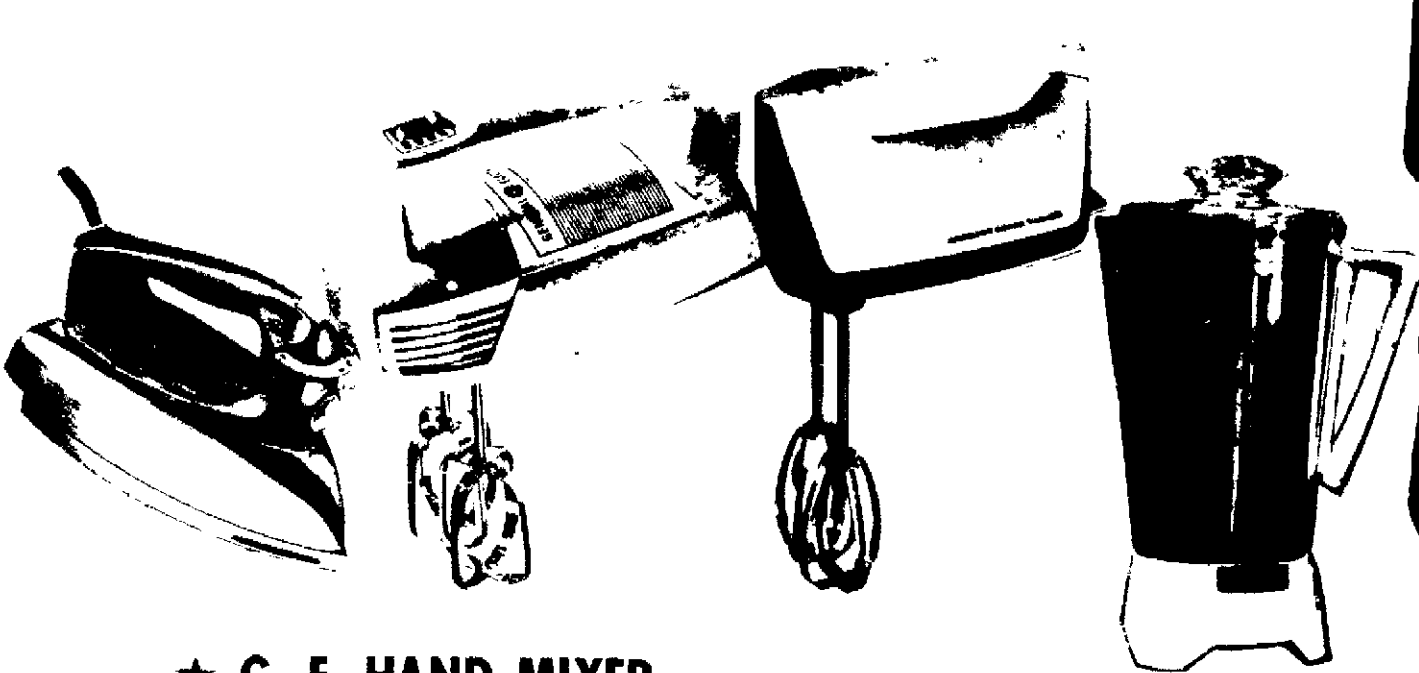

The best available estimates put the strength of Soviet forces in Poland, Hungary and East Germany at about 16 divisions, but some estimates range as high as 26 divisions. Most are in East Germany. Romanians say the last Russian troops left their country in 1957.

The United States has about 300,000 military personnel in Western Europe. Figures for other allied contingents in Western Europe were not available. France, not a participant in NATO military arrangements, has troops in West Germany under a bilateral agreement.

Romania long has advocated the simultaneous dissolution of the Communist Warsaw Pact and NATO and upset the Soviet bloc last summer with complaints about Russian domination of the East European military alliance.

IMA Holds
First Meeting

Members of Warren Industrial Management Association, in their initial meeting of the season, toured Thomas Flexible Coupling Division of Rex Chain Belt, Inc.

Dinner speakers were Fritz W. Reider, plant manager and Bob MacQueen, personnel manager. Guides at the plant were Robert Larson, David Brandhorst, Richard Borch, Ernest Johnson, Richard Johnston, Carl Roberts, Lew Gibson, Frank Bryan, Neil Robb, Al Sidon and Jack Weber.

The 67 IMA members learned that since coming to Warren in 1962, Thomas Coupling Division had added approximately 18,000 square feet of manufacturing and office space to the local plant.

These additions were completed in October of 1965 and December of 1966, adding about one-third more manufacturing and office space. The Thomas plant is essentially a machine shop operation and is engaged in manufacture of flexible shaft couplings.

Area Communities Seek Public Opinion on Center

Leadership in the communities of Bear Lake, Lottsville and Wrightsville would like to see a community center building erected in that area.

Now, they are going to the public to see if it also wants such a facility to include a small gymnasium, skating rink combination, kitchen facilities and meeting room.

Such a building, it was estimated would cost $40,000, of which two-thirds might be obtained from the federal government if the building outlined would be used for its outlined purposes for 20 years.

Groups such as 4-H, agricultural extension, Boy and Girl Scouts, Golden Agers, churches, pre-school mothers, public service agencies and reunions and receptions would possibly use the facility.

The building would be maintained through membership fees and fund raising activities, according to a questionnaire which is being distributed to residents of the three-community area. The questionnaires are to be returned by Saturday to Donald Martin of Bear Lake or Kotod's store there.

Fog Cancels Area Flights

Fog and rain over the weekend grounded airplanes at Bradford Regional Airport at Mt. Alto but traffic on roads in the Kinzua Dam area was the heaviest in a year, according to observers.

Despite gloomy drizzle, campers hit Kinzua Dam campsites for a final fall outing.

Air traffic, however, to and from the airport, stood still from 2:45 p.m. to 9:05 p.m. Sunday due to heavy fog, an airport spokesman said. Visibility was limited to three quarters of a mile during the day but Monday morning flights ran on schedule.

Airport officials said the last time flights were cancelled over a six-hour period was in the spring.

Corry Journal Urges
PM Positions be Filled
In Bear Lake, Columbus

The Corry Journal since mid-summer has been conducting a running investigation to discover why more than four years have elapsed since a civil service examination was held to find candidates for postmaster positions in Bear Lake and Columbus with no one yet tapped to fill the posts.

Last Wednesday The Journal sent telegrams to President Johnson, Senator Joseph Clark, the Civil Service Commission and Post Office Department as follows:

"After delay of more than four years, strongly recommend you fill vacant postmaster positions in Bear Lake and Columbus (Warren County) Pennsylvania."

There was no suggestion as to who should be appointed, but merely the recommendation that the vacancies be filled.

Only one recipient of the Journal's wires had responded by noon today, the Civil Service Commission.

Here is what the Commission had to say:

Dear Sir: This acknowledges receipt of your telegram of October 4, 1967, relative to the filling of postmaster vacancies at Bear Lake and Columbus, Pennsylvania, offices of the third class.

As a result of open competitive examinations held by the Civil Service Commission for postmaster at the above named offices, certificates of eligibles were issued to the Post Office Department for its consideration in making selections for appointment to the positions. Persons selected must be nominated for appointment by the President and confirmed by the United States Senate before their appointments can be effected.

The Department reported the selection of Mr. Lloyd N. McCray for appointment as postmaster at Columbus, and his nomination is currently pending in the Senate.

Under date of August 3, 1967, the Department advised us that the nomination of Mr. Harvey L. Martin for appointment as postmaster at Bear Lake, which was pending in the Senate, was withdrawn at his request. On August 8, 1967, the Commission issued an amended certificate of the top three eligibles on the register for the Department's consideration in making another selection for appointment to the postmaster position at Bear Lake.

The selection of an eligible for appointment to postmaster position is a matter under the jurisdiction of the Post Office Department. We have, therefore, taken the liberty of forwarding your telegram to Mr. W. Carson Browning Jr., Director, Postmasters, Post Office Changes and Rural Appointments Division, Post Office Department, Washington, D.C. 20260, for further reply to you.

Sincerely yours,

Henry C. Roberson, Chief Postal Examining Division

Aside from the apparent hint in the letter that something is being done in the Washington manner on the two positions, a more concrete indication came to the surface at midmorning today.

Michael Arden of R. D. 1, Bear Lake, logical contender for the postmastership there with the withdrawal of Harvey Martin, appeared in The Journal newsroom bearing a letter from the Post Office Department dated last Wednesday (the same day The Journal telegram reached the department) that Arden is eligible for the Bear Lake appointment.

The letter asked that Arden complete a form which is required and have a physical examination. His appointment, said the postal message, is "under consideration."

The Columbus situation remains unsettled.

Police Report

Warren borough police received 836 telephone calls with requests for information last month. Police answered 133 calls; conducted 28 minor investigations and 11 major.

Stolen goods were recovered in the amount of $1,515 and officers guarded money in transit eight times. Eight fire calls were answered; nine doors found open or unlocked, one funeral escorted, 11 dogs disposed of, eight transients or overnight lodgers, 16 street lights reported out, two talks and lectures given and 18 accidents investigated.

Board of Health

There were no communicable diseases in Warren borough during September. The health officer paid a total of 133 visits, investigated seven complaints and abated five nuisances. Inspected were four stores, 15 drinking and eating places, seven barber shops and two service stations.

FIRE DEPARTMENT NERVE CENTER

The nerve center of Warren borough's fire fighting and fire prevention system is central headquarters on Third avenue. With the two engine stations on the east and west sides of town there are 23 men including the chief, assistant chief, two captains and a chief mechanic. The local department is also an integral part of the county-wide mutual aid program. In addition to regular duties the men undergo continuous schooling in various facets related to their work. (Photo by Mansfield)

Fire Fighting is a 24-Hour
Job Over 365 Days Each Year

By BETTY RICE

This may be National Fire Prevention week but in Warren borough (and county) fire fighting and fire prevention is a 24-hour job 365 days a year.

The operation of the fire department is easily taken for granted but is actually complex and requires considerable vital equipment and continual training.

The overall borough fire department consists of 24 officers and men; a chief, assistant chief, two captains and a chief mechanic.

At central headquarters on Third avenue, each 24-hour shift is manned by a captain and five men. A driver and hoseman are on duty at both Engine 2 and Engine 3 stations located at Madison and Buchanan streets (east) and Pennsylvania ave. and Pine street (west).

During a general alarm, such as fire at the hospital, children's home and some schools, all equipment speeds to the scene immediately with off-duty firemen called in as needed.

On all other calls, central headquarters is manned by at least one engine company. Operating on a dividing line system, fire calls east of Hickory street find headquarters responding with Engine 3 standing by to fill in.

West of Hickory and north of Fourth avenue plus the south side calls headquarters and Engine 3 with Engine 2 as fill-in. As for equipment at headquarters, there is a 750 gallon per minute pumper, a 65 foot aerial ladder truck, high-pressure foam truck, emergency truck, rescue boat and motor on a trailer and chief's car.

Engine 3 station houses a second 750 gallon per minute pumper while Engine 3 has a 1,000 gallon per minute pumper.

All pumper trucks are equipped with 1,250 feet of two and a half inch hose and 400 feet of inch and a half hose—a total of 9,150 feet, two and half inch and 2,750 one and a half.

The department has six self-contained oxygen masks, two pneulators, several cannister-type masks, a total of 381 feet of ladders along with the rescue boat, complete with grappling hooks and other necessary devices used in searching for bodies in the water.

Salvage equipment is also carried in fire-fighting apparatus. The department has salvage covers, a new unit that will siphon water from floors and rugs, sawdust to remove floor moisture, lathe and plastic coverings for burned openings such as windows or roofs, the latter used to alleviate possible storm damage and retain some heat in cold weather.

There are forcible entry tools, a home-light generator, power saw, fog and straight stream nozzles, turret and deck guns with various size nozzle tips, ladder pipe used in both fog and straight streams, fire extinguishers, an assortment of small tools, adapters to fit all sizes of threads, extra hydrant gates, liquid and powder foam and foam generators.

Some other equipment includes first aid materials, a smoke ejector to clear out that type of fire nuisance, portable flood lights, life net, assortment of ropes, door opener, metal roof cutters and equipment necessary for sprinkler system repairs.

The borough fire department is completely radio-equipped with headquarters the control center for all county fire departments. There is also an inter-com set-up between stations.

The borough fire department participates in mutual aid on a county-wide basis and will send equipment to any location in the county provided it is requested by an officer or member of the department needing assistance. Private individuals, however, out of the borough cannot make the request.

Borough firemen put in a full year. In 1966, as an average, there were 321 calls of all types; 19,250 feet of hose laid; 1,663.1 miles traveled to and from fires and 139 hours and 51 minutes spent on emergency runs. Total valuation involved was $2,071,775 but actual fire loss totaled $92,810.

The local fire alarm system contains 55 street fire alarm boxes and about the same number of "phantom box locations." The latter is actually a box number used where there is no actual box location such as at Buchanan street and Madison avenue.

There are 211 hydrants located throughout the borough on water mains from four inch to 16 inches in size. The water is supplied by Warren Water Company from the Glade storage tank and the large reservoir on Tanner Hill.

The department provides a red 1 service locally. The emblem is affixed on homes where invalids reside to effect proper rescue operations during emergencies.

During an average year the department conducts over 600 inspections at hospitals, nursing homes, apartment buildings, garages and service stations, refineries, churches, schools and other structures.

Fire drills are conducted several times annually in schools, hospitals and nursing homes with evacuation time recorded in files at headquarters.

Firemen are continually schooled in all phases of fire department fundamentals and average over 600 hours of in-station training plus drills at a drill area including ladder work, pumping from hydrants and draught. They also drill with heavy stream appliances, burning of oil and gasoline in a burning area, extinguishment with high pressure fog and foam.

Firemen have completed courses in radiological work and the Explosive Ordnance Reconnaissance Course sponsored by the U.S. Army Support Center in Niagara Falls, N.Y.

Drills are also conducted with boats on the river for grappling and rescue operations.

Visitors to the station include classes from grade schools in the Warren area and nearby towns, scouts, church groups, members of neighboring municipal departments and others. Several First Class Boy Scouts have been given special training in firefighting fundamentals and first aid study to achieve Firemanship Merit awards.

The men usually attend monthly meetings such as Warren County Active Volunteer sessions in the area and special meetings prior to the annual Warren County Field Day. Repairs are made to various pieces of equipment or replacement made.

Last year the emergency truck responded to about 50 pneulator calls. Last month there were six such calls along with a total of 29 still calls and box alarms.

Warren has some false alarms, usually confined to faulty sprinkler systems but some from those who fail to realize the danger and penalties involved when equipment and men are called out for nothing. There have been a few bomb scares in local department history but all have proved hoaxes.

All in all the life of a borough fire fighter is a full one even on days when the alarm system is quiet. But when sirens sound and flames erupt or explosions resound, Warren can rest assured that local firemen with full equipment are poised and prepared to risk their lives to protect the lives and property of local and area resident.

Story Hour
To Start Soon

The popular story hours for pre-school children at Warren Public Library will again be one of the highlights of service to children rendered by the juvenile department.

Miss Ann Lesser, children's librarian, announced the pre-school story hours will begin October 18 and will be held each Wednesday morning from 10:30 - 11 a.m. Children in the 3 to 5 age group will be accepted.

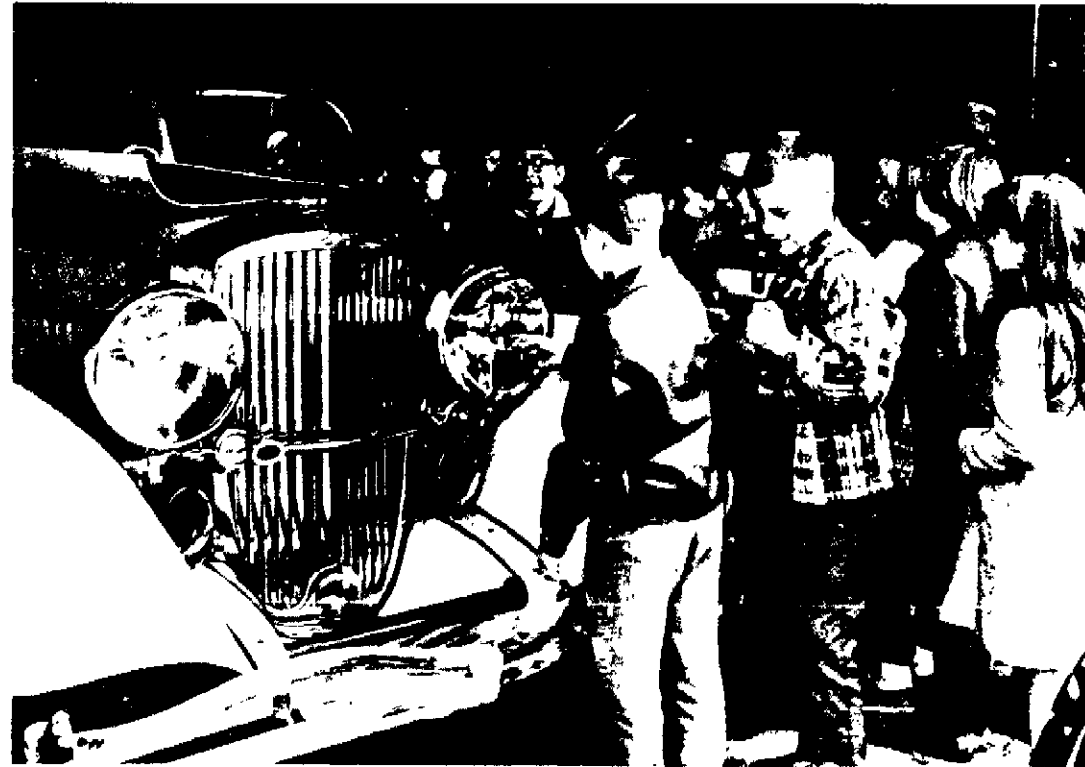

Registrations for the pre-school story hours are now being accepted at the local library and parents may register children at the main desk or by telephone.

Ex-Warrenite Arrested Here

A 23-year-old former Warren resident was arrested at about 2:30 p. m. Monday and charged with driving during suspension.

Borough police Sgt. Edward Peterson, the arresting officer, stated he observed Roger Allen, of RD Bonwood, Jamestown, N. Y., driving west on Third avenue.

According to police, Allen was currently under one year suspension when he was picked up.

ADMIRE ANTIQUE CAR

Mrs. Paul Volkman's fifth grade class at Market Street School displayed great admiration yesterday when they were permitted to view the 1935 cream-colored Duesenberg roadster owned by William F. Crossett, of 506 Fourth

THE PAIRS 'N SPARES — the adult social group of St. John's Lutheran Church — is planning a Friday, The 13th, Party at the Bullwinkle Club on Pleasant road. Members are going to attend in costume for this double celebration which honors not only the awesome combination of a Friday and the date "13", but also the Eye of All Saints — known down through the centuries as "Halloween" and traditionally celebrated on October 31st. For this most interesting of evenings, which will be rounded out with a Box Social and square dancing, each woman is to bring a box lunch to be put up for "auction" and go to the highest bidder. The money realized will be put into the fund for charitable projects of the Pairs 'N Sparer. Time of the party is 8:30 p. m.

CHRISTMAS IN OCTOBER, an annual event, will be observed at this evening's WOTM Chapter Night at 8 o'clock. The traditional gift gathering at this time of the year by Women of the Moose guarantees a happy Christmas for those residing at Mooseheart and Moosehaven. Co-workers are asked to bring only items which have been listed as the special requests of Mooseheart and Moosehaven. The program of entertainment at tonight's meeting will be provided by the New Penn Beauty School personnel who will show hairdos suitable for the coming holidays. All officers are reminded to wear their long white gowns. Refreshments will be served.

THERE'S TO BE A GARAGE SALE at the Richard Schmitt residence on the old Warren-Jamestown road this Saturday, October 14th, beginning at 11 a. m. Anyone having anything to donate may bring the item to Schmitt's, or, for pick-up call Mrs. Schmitt at 757-8319, or Mrs. Clarence Carlson Jr. at 757-4440.

ANOTHER RUMMAGE SALE scheduled for this week end is that of the Warren Assembly No. 143 Order of Rainbow For Girls on Friday and Saturday. It will be held in the former location of the George Johnson Music Shop, at the foot of Conewango avenue, on Pennsylvania avenue (across the street) Anyone having rummage to donate is asked to call Mrs. Carl Barker at 723-4371, or bring to the building tomorrow afternoon. The sale on both days will open at 9:30 a. m. — Bargains are promised for all.

MINIATURES; Mrs. Georgia Cramer, former Warren resident, has undergone surgery at Methodist Evangelical Hospital, Broadway street, Louisville, Ky., 40219, and would appreciate hearing from friends in this area.

The Tidoute WCTU will hold a rummage sale Friday and Saturday of this week in the store room adjacent to Goodwin's Department Store. Donations may be left at the homes of Mrs. Dean Nicholson, Mrs. Arthur King, or Mrs. Harriette Courson.

Ann Landers

Answers Your Problems

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Last month I lived through the "back-to-school shopping" nightmare. As a salesperson who has seen 15 such seasons I have something to say to mothers who shop with teenage daughters — whom they profess to love.

In a voice, loud enough to be heard all over the store, I have heard mothers bellow, "Take off that plaid jumper. You look like a cow." "That color is ghastly on you. You're too pallid to wear green or yellow." "You shouldn't wear sleeveless blouses, dear. Your arms are too skinny." "Your stomach sticks out in that pleated skirt. Why don't you go on a diet?" "Take off that blouse. The neckline emphasizes your scrawny neck and your terrible posture."

Invariably they wind up the barrage of insulting remarks with something like this: "I am your mother and I want you to look nice. Don't listen to the sales girl. All she cares about is making a sale."

One of these days I am going to lose my cool and tell off a mother even if it means my job. I don't expect to see this letter in print because knocking American mothers is like stepping on the flag — PWK

DEAR PWK: Here's your letter and I am delighted to print it. And now, you teenagers whose mothers have said to you on occasion, "Did you read Ann Landers today, dear?" — maybe it's your turn.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am 20, married, pregnant and scared to death. Soon I must go to an obstetrician for a checkup. I am already in my fourth month and have been putting it off because I am so frightened of the examination. How do I know what is expected of me? If the doctor says, "Take off all your clothes," does that mean I have to do it just because he says so? In this examination, how do I know if he is doing anything he is not supposed to do?

We are newcomers to the city and I have no family doctor here and no one to talk to about this. I hope you will not think I am silly, because I do need your help. — PETRIFIED

DEAR PET: If you have no friend who can recommend an obstetrician, call your county Medical Society, which is listed in the phone book. Go to a physician at once (you should have seen a doctor before now) and place your confidence in him.

The vast majority of physicians are lucky if they can get through the day without collapsing from exhaustion. They have neither the time, the energy, nor the desire to fool around with patients.

It is not unusual to fear the unknown — and this is your problem. After one visit, you will probably kick yourself for having had these baseless suspicions.

Strike Changes Plans For Penna. Nurses Meeting

Forced to change plans because of the Pittsburgh Penn Sheraton Hotel strike, Pennsylvania nurses will gather in Lancaster on Nov. 27 for the 63rd annual convention of the Pennsylvania Nurses Association.

Originally scheduled for Oct. 16 in Pittsburgh, the week-long convention at the Host Farm Resort Motel, Lancaster, will feature clinical and technical sessions as well as business meetings of the organization. The Student Nurses Association of Pennsylvania has also re-scheduled its convention to meet at the Host Town Motel, Lancaster, at the same time.

Agnes E. M. Anderson, R.N., executive secretary, points out that decisions affecting the welfare of patients throughout the state will be made. "More serious and critical judgments are demanded of the professional nurse everyday," she added, "as the progress of medicine and of techniques of health care add to the complexity of nursing service."

The association's "Honorary Recognition" will be awarded to two distinguished Pennsylvania nurses at the annual banquet, Nov. 30. Election of officers will climax the closing session the following day.

YWCA Athletic Director Tells Of 'Aqua Tots'

An interesting and enlightening talk was given by Robert Hammerbeck, YWCA athletic director, at the Monday evening meeting of the Young Mothers Study Club. The meeting took place at the home of Mrs. Edward Burns, 1 Cottage Place.

Mr. Hammerbeck told of the methods suitable for teaching children, of the 4 to 7-year-old age group, how to swim. He mentioned a new inflatable life preserver, called a "bubble," which can be deflated in accordance with the young swimmer's acquired confidence and skill as he progresses in swimming.

Mrs. John O'Neill presided at the business meeting and welcomed all new members to the club. Among those elected to membership were: Mrs. William Bogar, Mrs. Edward Burger, Mrs. Robert Hammerbeck, Mrs. J. B. Kemp, Mrs. Michael Mead, Mrs. Charles Myers, Mrs. Larry Nault, Mrs. John Park, Mrs. H. Chase Putnam, Mrs. Ronald Simonsen, Mrs. Elbert Turbessi.

Assisting the hostess with the serving of refreshments were Mrs. Francis McElroy and Mrs. Ronald Stanley. The next meeting will be Men's Night on October 21.

Annual Missionary Convention At Local Church This Weekend

The Christian and Missionary Alliance Church, located at 615 Conewango avenue, will have an annual Missionary Convention this weekend. The convention opens tomorrow evening at 7 and will close at 11 a.m. Sunday, October 15.

The two visiting missionaries and principal speakers will be Miss Alice Ryan, missionary of

The Christian and Missionary Alliance to the Ivory Coast of Africa since 1952, and the Rev. Robert E. Aller, missionary of The Christian and Missionary Alliance to Columbia, South America, since 1962.

Since Miss Ryan's returning for her third term of service, she and her father have been the only missionaries on the station at Beoumi, the Ivory Coast. Her responsibilities include such duties as being liaison for foreign delegations to the country, the Peace Corps, etc., and sometimes acting as the operator of a receiving home for mission visitors.

The Rev. and Mrs. Aller began their missionary career in a newly-opened area of Colombia where much of the traveling depended on canoes, dugouts and outboard motor boats. For several years Mr. Aller taught Christian Education and established Sunday schools while living in America.

Their last year of the mission field was spent at the Bible seminary in Medellin, a city of almost a million people. The Rev. Aller will relate some of their experiences in the field and show curios, costumes. He will also be showing slides on Saturday evening at 7 and will be the Sunday morning speaker at services.

THE ELEGANCE OF CZARIST RUSSIA

There will be an air of glamour in this autumn's fashions, especially in wool knitted suits, one of which, above, is called Anna Karenina — a coat and dress costume from Dalton of America. In wool whipcord, the coat is trimmed in broadtail processed Spanish lamb. The dress part of the ensemble features a long sleeve basic shift. Simplicity turned into high style. A strong streak of the imperial elegance of Czarist Russia may be glimpsed in many of fashions created for this fall and winter.

Opening lead: Five of ♠
A thoughtless play by South at the opening gun in today's hand led to the upset of his three no trump contract.

West opened the five of hearts, the four was played from dummy and East won the trick with the king. The heart suit did not appear to offer further prospect for the defense for, unless West held both the queen and jack—an unlikely prospect in view of South's opening call—then the declarer had a double stopper.

The diamond suit looked more inviting and East promptly shifted to the jack of diamonds. South finessed the queen which lost to West's king. The latter continued with the eight and East overtook with the nine to make certain of dislodging declarer's ace.

South was unable to develop nine tricks without establishing the club suit; however, West put up the ace immediately and returned his remaining diamond which enabled East to cash out three more tricks and send declarer down to a 200 point deficit.

South could have assured his contract at the outset against anything short of a tidal wave by playing the ace of hearts from dummy, but dislodging the ace of clubs was. Observe that as soon as the club suit is established, he has nine tricks—three spades, one heart, one diamond, and four clubs.

The play of the heart ace at trick one, may cost an over-trick if W. it has the heart king, but it provides absolute assurance against East's getting in to make the fatal diamond shift thru declarer's vulnerable holding, before the ace of clubs has been drawn out.

Your Horoscope

By Frances Drake

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars, FOR WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 11, 1967

ARIES (March 21 to April 20) — Expansive period, A chance to advance toward some of your goals, Responsive to study, travel, delving into the intriguing sciences and art. Check your faults, increase your knowledge.

TAURUS (April 21 to May 21) — Important influences evident that can be most helpful for a middle-of-the-week day, May have to exercise extra patience and actually apply the pressure ambition-wise but results will be worth it.

GEMINI (May 22 to June 21) — Don't be sold on the idea that you can reach the pinnacle of success without good hard work and much soul-searching and intensive application. Employ such quality that inner contentment will be yours.

CANCER (June 22 to July 23) — Be careful of those with whom you associate. The most attractive could well be the most dangerous. It is what is INSIDE that is genuinely honest and upstanding that counts. Pick smartly.

LEO (July 24 to August 23) — Tailor the day to suit your obligations. Fit, cut and change schedule to satisfy the important issues requiring attention. Don't squander time when you have so much to gain, and such ability to ignite.

VIRGO (August 24 to September 23) — Day is rich in possibilities for a real go-getter like you who supplements experience and knowledge with a mite of daring and well-executed routine that bespeaks a topnotch production.

LIBRA (September 24 to October 23) — Don't sell ability short. One has to pay a premium for intelligence these days so respect those who possess it and use your own to amplify your coverage and pinpoint your purpose.

SCORPIO (October 24 to November 22) — Perhaps some unusual tendencies. You may meet someone new who will open a whole new outlook on life or maybe revive an old acquaintanceship you dropped. Be ever hopeful for true benefits.

SAGITTARIUS (November 23 to December 21) — Look forward not backward. Keep your sights set on a goal worthy of you and your talents. When irked, avoid a tendency to be cross or use the abrupt word. Heed and follow wise advice.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 20) — Add where you reasonably can to enhance your general status — subtract anything unpleasant that is also not essential. Leave the quitters far behind with your full, vigorous program.

AQUARIUS (January 21 to February 19) — Give a little, get a lot — it always works out that way for the generous person who has the welfare of others at heart. Naturally don't deplete your resources to the danger level. Watch the diet!

PISCES (February 20 to March 20) — Mark time with tedious tasks, unless important then don't postpone. Where possible alter for helpful brevity. Be poised, cheerful, a considerate companion willing to embrace what his partner desires.

YOU BORN TODAY: Are earmarked for a top slot. However you won't get there by just wishing. Much hard labor and heavy thinking is the order of the day until you have proven yourself. Then others recognize your worth and aid you in putting your talents to good use. A tendency to worry must be squelched lest it interfere with your innate cheery and optimistic nature. Travel, exploration and research are all high on your "to do" list. You do extremely well handling people in a very persuasive yet unobtrusive manner.

How to Keep Well

By Dr. T. R. Van Dellen

To the limit of space, questions pertaining to the prevention of disease will be answered. Personal replies will be made when return stamped envelope is inclosed. Telephone inquiries not accepted. Dr. Van Dellen will not make diagnoses or prescribe for individual diseases.

EXERCISE AND PREGNANCY

Obstetricians usually recommend exercise for their patients unless special reasons prohibit it. Exercises, however, should not be done to the point of fatigue. The nearer the day of delivery the sooner the woman gets tired. Walking is excellent because it is not exhausting and is done out of doors.

Low-heeled shoes with wide toes are best. Avoid crowds. Long jaunts are strenuous yet athletic women are able to walk 2 or 3 miles without tiring. On the other hand, the expectant mother with too much housework may find it necessary to confine her outdoor activity to short walks. She benefits more from rest. Stairs can be climbed whenever necessary.

General activity keeps the woman fit and prevents muscle wasting. Early exercise improves bad posture, strengthens flabby abdominal muscles and improves circulation, especially in the veins. The appetite and digestion are enhanced with better elimination of waste products and more restful sleep.

Violent exercises are taboo during the later months of pregnancy. This includes golf, swimming, tennis, cycling, skating, and horseback riding. Exceptions occur among those accustomed to these sports. Dancing is allowable, but avoid crowded rooms. Heavy lifting such as turning mattresses or moving furniture should not be done.

Some physicians recommend other types of exercise which help in the delivery of the child. The woman learns to contract and relax the pelvic muscles. Squatting also is said to be helpful and breathing exercises may improve the function of the lungs in "the athletic feat of labor."

TOMORROW: Elusive Origins of Hives.

Dr. Van Dellen will answer questions on medical topics if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request.

BRITTLE NAILS

C.C. writes: I have double toenails. They do not bother me except that I run into difficulty filing and cutting them. Can you explain this unusual condition?

REPLY

Separation of nails into layers is likely to occur when they are dry and brittle. This may result from the use of chemicals or from infection, poor circulation, or deficient thyroid secretion.

EXTRA FLUIDS

B.W.M. writes: Is whisky considered a strong diuretic? When I drink, I have to go frequently.

REPLY

Yes, but in most instances, the diuretic action comes from the extra fluids taken with the drinks.

AN AUTUMN MEAL

This homey, first-hint-of-autumn supper features Barbecue Beans and Sausage, an easy-to-do dish that starts with a can of barbecue beans. Sausage balls and corn add extra flavor and color. Crisp relishes and buttermilk muffins are good go-alongs.

Old-Fashioned Supper

The evening is cool... with a crisp hint of autumn in the air. It's a good time to light the first fire of the season, and gather the family round for a homey, old-fashioned supper. And what could be more appropriate in the feature spot on the menu than tangy Barbecue Beans and Sausage?

For all its "yesteryear" aura and flavor, this dish is in the most up-to-date context, thanks to the convenience of canned barbecue beans. As the starter for this recipe, a can of barbecue beans provides four kinds of plump, tender beans, simmered in a tangy tomato sauce, ready to heat and serve. You add savory sausage balls and whole kernel corn, for color and flavor contrast. It's that simple... and simply delicious.

You may want to keep several cans of tasty barbecue beans on hand for the hearty but speedy suppers that ease busy fall schedules. And families really go for that robust, fresh-off-the-fire barbecue flavor.

Complement Barbecue Beans and Sausage with a tray of crisp relishes, and buttermilk muffins, (from a packaged mix). Dessert might be a warm fruit compote, and hot coffee.

BARBECUE BEANS AND SAUSAGE
1/2 pound bulk sausage
1 can (1 pound) barbecue beans

1/2 cup whole kernel corn, drained
Shape sausage into 8 balls. In saucepan, cook until done; pour off fat. Add beans and corn. Heat; stir now and then. Makes 2 to 3 servings.

Deluxe Macaroni & Cheese Bake

New recipe ideas come and go... but the classics go on forever. Most of us grew up on (and thrived on) such mealtime standards as homemade vegetable soup, rich beef stew and macaroni and cheese. Now, we're repeating the same pattern with our own families. No doubt, our daughters, too, will want to make these dishes just "like mother used to make."

Really, about the only change in these classic dishes that's developed through the years is the increasing use of convenience food products in the basic recipe itself or in a sauce or other accompaniment.

For example, here's the time-honored recipe for macaroni and cheese, made just the way our family likes it with lots of full-flavored Cheddar cheese in a creamy sauce.

Our modern innovation comes with the savory tomato sauce to serve with the macaroni. It's made with just two pantry-ready products—canned tomato sauce with mushrooms and dry spaghetti sauce mix—plus water. If you have an extra minute before serving, you might like to pour some of the sauce over the macaroni and then add a golden topknot of cheese triangles.

Incidentally, the next time you make your family's other favorite classic dishes—pot roast, beef stew or homemade soups—pour in a can of tomato sauce with mushrooms. The sauce is made with garden-fresh, red-ripe tomatoes mildly seasoned and slowly simmered; tender young mushroom pieces are added just before canning. Tomato sauce with mushrooms not only adds piquant flavor to meat dishes but good rich color as well.

DELUXE MACARONI AND CHEESE BAKE
1 (8-oz.) pkg. elbow macaroni
2 Tablesp. pure vegetable oil
2 Tablesp. flour
1 teaspoon seasoned salt
1/4 teaspoon pepper

1 cup milk
1/2 lb. shredded sharp Cheddar cheese
1 (1 1/2-oz.) pkg. dry spaghetti sauce mix
1 (8-oz.) can tomato sauce with mushrooms
1 1/2 cups water
Cook macaroni according to package directions; drain. In saucepan combine oil, flour, seasoned salt and pepper; heat until bubbly. Stir in milk, stirring until thick, smooth and comes to a boil. Stir in cheese until melted. Combine macaroni and cheese sauce. Turn into oiled 1 1/2-quart casserole. Bake at 350 degree F. until lightly browned and bubbly. Meanwhile, in saucepan combine spaghetti sauce mix, tomato sauce with mushrooms and water. Bring to boil; lower heat and simmer 25 minutes. Serve with macaroni.

Makes 6 servings.
NOTE: For extra-attractive service, immediately after taking macaroni from oven pour on some of the tomato sauce and top with triangles of process cheese; the heat from the casserole will melt the cheese slightly. Serve the remaining sauce with the casserole at the table.

Industry and agriculture are Florida's biggest pursuits.

For Cool Refreshment

High and frosty, Piquant Plum Sherbet is perfect for light refreshments. This taste-tingling sherbet features Northwest canned purple plums blended with tart buttermilk. Lemon juice and grated lemon peel accent the mixture.

Begin freezing purple plum sherbet in refrigerator trays. When almost firm, remove to a chilled bowl and beat smooth. Then pile the sherbet in parfait glasses and return to the freezer to freeze firm.

The rich flavor of canned purple plums makes them a favorite for family desserts. Sweet, yet tart, they are sure to please in sauces for puddings and cakes. Also good are the old favorites of purple plum dumplings and coffee cake.

With year-round barbecuing popular, use canned purple plums as a meat accompaniment. Simply add a dash of vinegar and spices to the sauce from canned purple plums and you'll have an intriguing barbecue sauce for lamb, pork or chicken. Serve the whole canned plums as a relish, of course, with the meat.

PIQUANT PLUM SHERBET
1 (1 lb. 13 oz.) can or jar purple plums

1 cup syrup, drained from plums
1 cup sugar
1 1/2 cup lemon juice
1 tablespoon grated lemon peel
2 cups buttermilk
1/4 teaspoon salt

Drain purple plums, reserving 1 cup syrup. Remove pits and puree plums in blender or food mill. Combine pureed plums, the 1 cup plum syrup and sugar in saucepan. Simmer until sugar is dissolved. Cool and add lemon juice and peel, buttermilk and salt. Mix well and pour into freezing trays. Freeze until almost firm. Scrape sherbet into chilled bowl and beat smooth. File into parfait glasses. Return to freezer and freeze until firm. Garnish with fresh mint. Makes 8 to 10 servings.

IDEA FOR LEFTOVER PLUM SYRUP: Add the flavor-rich crimson syrup drained from canned purple plums to milk and ice cream for a nourishing plum milk shake.

PLUM SHERBET AS MEAT ACCOMPANIMENT: Cool tanginess of Piquant Plum Sherbet makes it perfect to serve with chicken, turkey or lamb. Serve a scoop in a small sherbet glass with a wedge of lemon or lime. Or, serve a scoop over fruit salad on each individual salad plate.

Sunny Chiffon Pumpkin Pie

Whether or not the celebrated pumpkin is native to America or to Asia is a matter of dispute. In either case, it is believed to have been cultivated by the pre-Columbian Indians. One sweet fact which cannot be denied is that this pungent fruit has been a favorite filling for pie ever since the pilgrims landed.

A delectable new recipe is Sunny Chiffon Pumpkin Pie. It features a distinctively original shell that is easily made with finely crushed double saltine crackers, sugar, orange rind, cinnamon and mace. The shell has a tantalizing taste and texture which make a perfect combination with the luscious filling.

Try serving Sunny Chiffon Pumpkin Chiffon Pie topped with a pecan sunburst. The pilgrims never had it so good!

PUMPKIN CHIFFON PIE
18 double Krispy Crackers
1 cup sugar
1 teaspoon grated orange rind
1/4 teaspoon ground cinnamon
1/4 teaspoon ground mace
6 tablespoons melted butter or margarine
2 eggs, separated
1 cup light cream
1 cup canned or cooked pumpkin

1 envelope unflavored gelatin
1/4 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon pumpkin pie spices
Pecan halves, optional

With rolling pin crush crackers into very fine crumbs between 2 sheets of waxed paper. (There should be about 1 1/2 cups.) Mix well with 1/4 cup sugar, orange rind, cinnamon and mace. Blend butter into crumb mixture.

Press crumbs firmly and evenly over bottom and sides of 9-inch pie plate, leaving a small standing edge. Refrigerate. Beat egg yolks in top of double boiler. Stir in cream and pumpkin. Add gelatin, mixed well with 1/2 cup sugar, salt and pumpkin pie spice.

Cook over boiling water, stirring constantly, for about 8 minutes or until gelatin has completely dissolved and mixture has thickened slightly. Remove from heat and chill, stirring occasionally, until cool but not set.

Beat egg whites until they hold soft peaks. Gradually add remaining 1/4 cup sugar, beating until peaks are quite firm. Gently fold into pumpkin mixture, blending well. Pour into chilled crumb shell. If desired, make a sunburst pattern of pecan halves.

Refrigerate until needed. Yield: 6 to 8 portions.

NOTICE

TO ALL ROOMING HOUSE OPERATORS:
On May 29, 1967 the Warren Borough Council adopted a Housing Code for Warren Borough, Under Article III, Section 301, of said Code the following provisions are made:
No person shall operate a rooming house or shall occupy or rent to another for occupancy a room in any rooming house unless he owns a rooming house permit issued by the Health Officer or the Board of Health. A rooming house is defined as any dwelling, hotel, or motel or that part of any dwelling, hotel, or motel containing one or more rooming units in which spaces let by the owner or operator to three or more persons who are not related by blood to the owner or operator. Applications for a permit shall be made by the operator to the Health Officer on forms furnished by the Board of Health. These application forms may be obtained at the Borough Office, 318 W. Third Avenue, Warren, Pa., during normal working hours, 8 A. M. to 12 Noon and 1 P. M. to 5 P. M., Monday through Friday.
This Code further provides for an inspection of the rooming house prior to any permit being issued.
Any questions you may have with regard to this procedure, please contact either the Health Officer or the Borough Manager.
Application for permits shall be applied for prior to January 1, 1968.
E. F. MacKENDRICK, HEALTH OFFICER

PLAN ANNUAL SHOW

Carole Lazarus, chairman for the fifth annual Sweet Adelines show, registers amazement at the prestigification of Don Nelson of Bradford, magician, Members of the Warren chapter of Sweet Adelines met Monday evening with Nelson to plan the Nov. 18 show, which will also include quartet and chorus singing groups, as well as a dance number.

Sweet Ads Plan Show

Preparing for their fifth annual show to be held November 18 at the Warren Area High School, members of the Warren Chapter of Sweet Adelines, Inc., met Monday evening to consult with Don Nelson, magician from Bradford.

Show chairman for "Hits Magic" now at work are Carole Lazarus, show chairman; Beverly Peterson, talent and hospitality; Jane Munn, house; Jane Noroin, publicity; Joyce Hishman, tickets; Helen Van Ors, programs; Fran Stewart, costumes; Mary DiPietro, treasurer; and Doris Vicini, secretary.

Providing entertainment for the show will be out of town and local quartets as well as the Warren Chorus singing "Magic Hits". Several members of the chorus will also be featured in a dance number.

Tickets for the show are now available at United Cigar Store, Millers East Side Store and American Hardware in Russell.
